LAWYER DENNISON SCORES McMASTERS.

"McMasters has said: 'My reputation is such that I can afford to mix up in any scandal.' This is the ineffaceable, imperishable estimate of himself, by McMasters. He is the cornerstone of the whole case."—From speech to jury of Lawyer Joseph Dennison, counsel for Representative Lamoureux at the latter's trial to-day.

'LAMOUREUX USED IN PLOT TO EXTORT MONEY'

---Lawyer Joseph A. Dennison

Testimony All In at Trial of Legislator Accused of Taking Bribe—Defendant's Lawyer Scathingly Arraigns Chief Witness of Prosecution.

Charging that William H. McMasters wanted to use Representative S. John Lamoureux to squeeze money out of the United Shoe Machinery Co., Lawyer Joseph A. Dennison, counsel for the representative on trial for alleged bribe-taking, to-day lashed McMasters with all the bitterness of his eloquent tongue in his speech to the jury.

The courtroom was jammed when Mr. Dennison began his address for the defence in this sensational case shortly after 10 o'clock. The trial is before Judge Bond and a jury in the Criminal Superior Court. Lamoureux is charged with having accepted a bribe for his influence against the Leased Shoe Machinery Bill now in the Legislature. The money, $180, was handed to him by McMasters.

"McMasters said," declared Mr. Dennison, "that his reputation was such that he could afford to mix up in any scandal. This is the ineffaceable, imperishable estimate of himself, by McMasters."

McMASTERS FOR HIMSELF.

McMasters was not actuated by a desire to get money with which to trap Lamoureux, Mr. Dennison declared, when he went to President Winslow of the shoe machinery company, their lawyer, Mr. Hurlburt and to Colonel Gaston. McMasters he said, wanted to make a "strike" and the men to whom he went were not idiots enough to think otherwise.

Lawyer Dennison charged that McMasters acted as the agent of the Standard Oil Company and that he wanted the bill killed.

"McMasters," continued Dennison, "says he got the money from Barron. There is nothing to support it. No man can safely rely on the word of McMasters. The man who put up the $200 wanted the bill killed. What was your deal, McMasters?"

FAILED TO GET BARRON.

When the trial was resumed to-day it was the intention of the defence to call Clarence W. Barron, proprietor of the Boston News Bureau, to tell what he knew about the case. McMasters testified that he had borrowed $200 from Barron, $180 of which he used, he said, to trap Lamoureux. Mr. Barron was not in the courtroom and he was not found.

The name of the Rev. Father Gobel was also called. It was intended that he would take the stand and testify to the good character of Lamoureux. But the clergyman was not in the courtroom.

Then Lawyer James O'Shea took the stand. He was called by the prosecution in rebuttal and he flatly contradicted the sworn testimony of Lamoureux in many particulars. While Lamoureux admitted that he received $180 from McMasters in his office, at the time the two police officers were concealed there, but he said he gave it to O'Shea. The money, he said, was to go to O'Shea as a retainer for the

CHEER 2,300 MARCHING BOYS IN CADETS' PARADE

GOVERNOR AND MAYOR REVIEW YOUNG SOLDIERS, WHO STEP TO LIVELY MUSIC.

To the stirring music of military bands and between sidewalks filled with people who cheered as they passed, the Boston School Cadets marched in their forty-first annual parade to-day.

The four regiments of blue-coated, white-trousered boys, all under arms, passed in review before Governor Guild and his staff, mebers of the Legislature and State officials at the State House and before Mayor Fitzgerald, members of the city government and invited guests at the City Hall.

The parade disbanded on the Common after lunch had been served there. The cadets reassembled after members of the School Board had gathered. They then executed manoeuvres, concluding with a marching salute.

Army of Boys in Line.

The parade in which marched more than 2,300 schoolboys, started from Clarendon and Montgomery streets.

The formation was as follows:

Platoon of mounted police; brigade staff of twenty boys; Fifth Regiment Band of thirty-three pieces, led by John Flockton; Third Regiment of Cadets, made up of eight companies from the English High School and two from the Brighton High; Ninth Regiment Band of thirty-three pieces, led by Fred T. Strachan; Fourth Regiment of Cadets, made up of six companies from the Dorchester High School and three companies from the South Boston High; St. Augustine's Band of twenty-five pieces, led by James J. Bulman; First Regiment of Cadets, made up of eight companies from the English High School, one company from the East Boston and one company from the Charlestown High; Carter Band of twenty-five pieces, led by Thomas Carter; Second Regiment of Cadets, made up of eight companies from the Boston Latin School, four companies from the Roxbury and one company from

Led by Young Commanders.

Colonel George H. Benyon, instructor in military drill, was the general director of the parade. The lieutenant-colonels of the different regiments acted as brigadier-generals during the line of march, each of them commanding during a part of the parade.

The line of march was as follows: In Clarendon street to Columbus avenue, Park square, Boylston street, Tremont street, Winter street, Summer street, Otis street, Franklin street, Broad street, State street, Devonshire street, Water street, Washington street, School street and Beacon street to the Common.

Play Ex-Cadet's Music.

Lieutenant Colonel Ralph H. Smalley of the Third Regiment, English High School, acted as brigadier general as far as Winter and Tremont streets. There Lieutenant Colonel Joshua B. Clark of the Fourth Regiment, Dorchester High School, assumed command which he held till Broad and State streets was reached. There Lieutenant Colonel Frederick W. Whittemore of the First Regiment, English High School, became acting brigadier and at the Common Lieutenant Francis G. Duffy of the Second Regiment, Boston Latin School, took command.

A march called "Our Gallant Boys," and written by Joseph Daly, himself a former cadet, was played by the bands several times during the parade.

On the Common about 3,000 schoolgirls, wearing the colors of the different schools, greeted the cadets. The girls wore the colors pinned upon their dresses and tied to sticks.

The parade ground upon which the cadets went through their manoeuvres was fringed with these lines of bright and contrasting colors.

House Fails to Reconsider Anti-Trust Vote.

SHOE BILL UP TO SENATE

Representatives Are on Guard for Trickery in the Crowded Lower Branch.

Committee on Engrossed Bills Now to "Examine" Important Measure.

The bill to regulate the sale or lease of machinery (otherwise the Shoe Machinery bill) is in the hands of the Senate committee on engrossed bills. They took the bill at 1 o'clock this afternoon, when Speaker Cole sent it over from the House of Representatives. Each branch has a single session to-day, the House in the morning and the Senate in the afternoon.

In preparation for any further trickery in the lower branch of the legislature, the attendance of Representatives to-day was extraordinarily large. Sandwiched in between two holidays, the Friday morning assembly would not have attracted a baker's dozen, were it not for the fact that the time limit for a motion to reconsider Wednesday's vote, by which the House "passed to be enacted" the Shoe Machinery bill, did not expire until the House to-day took up the "orders of the day."

No Motion to Reconsider.

It was 11:12 to-day when, the routine business out of the way, reports from committees and the like, Speaker Cole asked the usual question, "Is there any objection to proceeding with the orders of the day?"

There was no motion made to reconsider, and the friends of the Shoe Machinery bill breathed a sigh of relief in chorus.

A noteworthy incident of the day in the House was the first appearance for five months of Representative W. H. I. Hayes of Lowell, who has been flat on his back for several months with an affection of the heart and who came to Boston to-day so emaciated as to scarcely be recognizable. Representative Hayes, by arranging a pair, has voted in favor of the Shoe Machinery bill at every stage, parting company with many of his former intimates in the House.

In Committee's Hands.

At an early hour it was considered unlikely that the bill would be disposed of by the Senate to-day. Of the committee which must first "examine" it there, Senator Williams of Attleboro has voted against the bill and Senator Sallond of Amherst has voted for it. Senator Curley of Boston, who has not voted, has been advertised up and down the State by the United Shoe Machinery Company as a member of the "Silent Four," the three other members being Dixon, Mellen and Mahoney.

DENNISON LASHES M'MASTERS

Lamoureux's Counsel Accuses Editor of Plotting Against His Client in Bribe Charge.

O'Shea swore that Lamoureux did not hand him the money in the office of McMasters but that he saw the money in the corridor of the building as they went out.

Mr. McMasters was then called to the stand and he denied many of the sworn statements of Lamoureux. He said that he did not tell Lamoureux that he wanted to work a job on the shoe machinery people, he did not see Lamoureux hand any money to O'Shea and that he did not whisper the names of Representatives Drysdale and Gauthier to him in the room.

Mr. Dennison in his address said:

"DEFENDANT CONFIDENT."

"Mr. Foreman and gentlemen of the Jury:

"We are glad that this inquiry is closed and the defendant confidently submits his case to you. You have found the case replete with interest and no experience has been more startling from beginning to end.

"The defendant is charged in four counts, with accepting a bribe for himself, soliciting a bribe for himself, for soliciting a bribe for others, and accepting a bribe for others. The others referred to are Drysdale and Gauthier. McMasters has said: 'My reputation is such that I can afford to mix up in any scandal.'

"This is the ineffacable, imperishable estimate of himself by Mr. McMasters. He is the corner-stone of the whole case. Take McMasters out of the case and what has the government got left?

WENT WITH O'SHEA.

"Let me make some things clear. On that Monday night Lamoureux went up with O'Shea to McMasters's office. O'Shea is a man whom he met under circumstances where mutual friendships quickly ripen.

"The members of the Legislature get through their work early, and there is nothing left for them to do but to kill time over a social glass of wine in cafes. You know the Lamoureux type. A young man thirty years old, a countryman, in a new experience for him, and living in this manner, he met the able, adoit, clever O'Shea.

"No matter what you say about O'Shea, he is able and capable of taking care of himself. On that night he got Lamoureux to go down to McMasters's office, as Lamoureux supposed for a good purpose, and not for any bunco game. On the stand Lamoureux has said that he was very fond of O'Shea.

"He believed he was doing an absolutely legitimate thing when he went to McMasters's office that night. He believed O'Shea could give legitimate services to the company, and he intended not to take part in any illegitimate schemes.

WANTED TO AID O'SHEA.

"Any man in the State House knows how lawyers make it their business to become legislative agents, and so long as they are not corrupt it is legitimate. You will see how Lamoureux was actuated only by a desire to help this man. He only wanted to see O'Shea get a retainer. You have seen him on the stand. Contrast his make-up with this McMasters and O'Shea.

"Was not he the uninitiated kind of a man McMasters wanted for getting money out of the pending bill?

"There is not one word against his character until he fell into the clutches of McMasters.

HONESTY VOUCHED FOR.

"He is a man as to whose honesty and integrity the Mayor, postmaster, chief of police and others of his native town have testified. What will my brother say to this? Will he say that a man may be honest in North Adams, but dishonest in Boston?

"Honesty is a God-given tribute and a man cannot be honest at home and dishonest abroad. Honesty cannot be simulated. It stays with us as long as we cherish it.

"You know from the testimony how important this piece of legislation is. It has attracted widespread attention. You know the Shoe Machinery Company was straining every nerve to kill the bill. You know that the Standard Oil Company is arrayed in legislation against this bill. We care not for the merits of the Shoe Machinery Company nor the oil company. I hold no brief from the Standard Oil Company.

"Lamoureux was against the bill, and his associates favored the bill.

"When we get the contending forces in a death-grip, like that in our Legislature this year, there are several ways matters can be influenced.

HOW MEN ARE BRIBED.

"One is by creating favorable public opinion, by subsidized editorials, and another is by bribery. Men generally bribe public officials to carry them away from their convictions. Every one knows the methods of Standard Oil, "The System," so-called. Transplanted from the old world, the system has splendidly developed in the United States. It has drawn the judiciary into it in some parts of the country.

"President Roosevelt has declared that its ways are so devious that even he himself confesses that he is unable to get at the botom of it. How would it affect legislation favoring the bill if a legislator was caught in the act of bribery? It is old-fashioned to go straight to a man and bribe him, and not up to the standard of the Standard Oil Company.

"What did McMasters do?

"M'MASTERS NO IDIOT."

"Do you believe that McMasters was ever such a consummate diot as to go to Winslow, the president of the Shoe Machinery Company, and ask him to give him $200 to bribe a man already on his side? And then say to him, 've got a man who's already with you. Give me $200 to destroy him?'

"NO!

"After an hour's conference, with nothing accomplished, McMasters went back again and asked him for other money for another purpose.

"Winslow, the clever, brainy politician, knew McMasters was trying to make a "strike." McMasters knew that Winslow, the clever man, would get at once to the point, and would say, 'For Gods's sake, Mac, don't do this; how much do you want?' "

FEARED McMASTERS.

"He was afraid of MsMasters, knew he was editor of a paper, and he feared McMasters would come out and hurt him in his paper. Do you think Winslow, the clever man, gave him a kick? No, emphatically no. Clever men don't do like this. Instead, he gave him a cigar and said, 'Go over and see our attorney.'

"He sent him to Hurlburt, and McMasters was such a consummate idiot that he went to Hurlburt's office. Meanwhile Hurlburt had been 'tipped off' by Winslow, and Hurlburt would have nothing to do with him. And then McMasters went to Colonel Gaston, and Gaston said that he could not not afford to mix up in any such scandal.

Do you believe McMasters was only acting in consideration of good citizenship when Gaston, pre-eminent among lawyers, and a prominent business man, would have nothing to do with it?

McMasters let two days go by, and goes to C. W. Barron, a man having a personal interest in every important piece of legislation in this country.

"McMasters says that he got the money from Barron. There is nothing to support it. No man ca nsafely rely on the word of McMasters.

Wanted Bill Killed.

"The man who put up the $200 wanted to see the bill killed.

"You, McMasters, went to him as the agent of the Standard Oil. What was your deal?

"Did you go to the shoe machinery company expecting them to buy you off with money? And then go to the other side and get money for bribery?

"Did you fool Moran? The company knew every honest newspaper in Massachusetts, when it learned there was a plot to bribe public opinion by paid editorials, would instantly turn against the company."

O'SHEA DENIES LAMOUREUX STORY

Lawyer Dennison, who represents Lamoureux, when court opened, called the name of the Rev. Father Gobel. There was no response. He was wanted to testify to the good character of Lamoureux. Then the name of Clarence W. Barron was called. He was not in court.

"I have so far failed to serve a summons on Barron," Mr. Dennison then announced to the Court. "We are trying to do it this mornig, but I do not know whether we will be able to get him."

Then the prosecution called Mr. O'Shea to rebut the testimony of Lamoureux.

Q.—When you were in McMasters's office did you say to Lamoureux that you had seen McMasters three or four times, and everything was all right, that McMasters was on thin ice and not on the level? A.—No.

Q.—Did he ask you what you wanted him to say? A.—No.

Q.—Did he tell you that McMasters would do most of the talking? A.—No.

Q.—Did you tease Lamoureuz fifteen or twenty minutes to go to McMasters's office, and did he say, "Jim, I don't want to go," and did you say, "O come? Say what is suggested?"

A.—No.

Q.—Did you tell him that you depended on him to help you out to get the money?

A.—No.

Q.—Did McMasters ever tell you that an agent of the Shoe Machinery Company was to be hidden in the next room?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you know that an agent of the company was going to be there? A.—No.

Q.—Did Lamoureux hand you the money in the room? A.—No.

Q.—When did you know he had the money? A.—Afterwards in the corridor of the Old South building.

Q.—Afterwards did you ask him for the money back? A.—I asked him what the trouble was.

Q.—Did you hear McMasters say to Lamoureux, "That's a pretty good job, you played your part well"? A.—No.

M'MASTERS DENIES STORY OF "PLOT"

Mr. McMasters was placed on the stand by Assistant District Attorney Dwyer at 9.55 o'clock and remained there twenty minutes. He denied many of the statements made by Lamoureux on the witness stand, including all the answers to important questions. He branded as false the statements of Lamoureux as to the fact that a job was being contemplated on a representative of the United States Shoe Machinery Company.

He also denied that he whispered the names Gauthier and Drysdale in Lamoureux's ear or that he told him to repeat these names out loud for the benefit of a representative of the United Shoe Machinery Company who was supposed to be hiding in the next room, according to Lamoureux's story.

The jury paid unusual attention to the witness as he denied these statements of Lamoureux's. Their eyes were on McMasters all the time he was on the stand.

Q.—Were you in court when Lamoureux testified on Wednesday? A.—Yes, the latter part of his testimony.

Q.—Whether or not you told O'Shea that you had fixed things all right and expected to have a representative of the Shoe Machinery Company at your office on that Monday night, March 4? A.—No, sir, I did not.

McMasters Emphatic.

The witness was very emphatic in his replies.

Q.—Whether or not after you and Lamoureux got in the private office you said to Lamoureux, "Kick, kick," as you handed him the money? A.—No, sir, I did not.

Q.—Whether or not while you were in the private office you said to Lamoureux, "Take it, take it," meaning the money? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Whether or not in your room that night Lamoureux handed O'Shea the money in your presence? A.—He did not.

On the witness stand Lamoureux testified that he did hand O'Shea the money immediately after coming out of the office and in the presence of McMasters. He further stated that he did not have the money in his hands more than one minute, and that he took it, supposing that it was to be for O'Shea.

Q.—Whether or not you said to Lamoreux before leaving him that night, 'That's all right; you did a good job?' A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Whether or not you asked Lamoureux about members of the judiciary committee and leaned forward and whispered in Lamoureux's ear, telling him to say "Gauthier and Drysdale" out loud? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you whisper for the purpose of coaching Lamoureux what to say? A.—No, I did not.

Questioned by Dennison.

Attorney Dennison then recross-examined the witness.

Q.—Did you see any money handed by one to the other in the corridor that night or at the entrance to the Old South building when you reached the street? A.—No.

Q.—On that Monday did you telephone to North Adams? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Did you telephone to anyone to find out if Lamoureux was coming down that morning? A.—No, I didn't.

Q.—On that Monday, as a matter of fact, Mr. Witness, didn't you telephone to North Adams and ask someone to find out if Lamoureux had left on a certain train for Boston that day? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Did O'Shea telephone for that purpose? A.—O'Shea telephoned to find out if he was coming down.

This ended the recross-examination. This was at 10:15 o'clock.

Attorney Dennison arose and asked if the officer was in court with the return of the C. W. Barron summons.

There was no response. The officers were unable to locate Mr. Barron and the summons was not served on him.

Dennison then, addressing the judge, said, "The defence has nothing further, your honor."

After a few minutes' conference between Judge Bond and the two attorneys, Mr. Dennison began his argument to the jury at 10.22 o'clock.

The court-room was crowded, every seat in the room being occupied.

PROPERTY OF HANNAH POWER IS ATTACHED

Four attachments were filed at the registry of deeds, East Cambridge, to-day, all against Hannah J. Power of Greenwich, Ct., who on January 14, of this year, secured $40,000 from the Central Trust Company on a mortgage on her four-story brick business block, Nos. 541-547 Massachusetts avenue and Nos. 7 to 15 in Norfolk street, Cambridge.

Mrs. Power stated in the mortgage that she had no husband it is alleged. Some time after this Mrs. Power's ame became associated with that of Captain William P. Williams, a retired army officer of New York, and the trust company officials secured from the captain a quit claim on the property mortgaged.

The attachments filed to-day were by parties claiming to be New York creditors of Mrs. Power. The first is for $500 on an action of contract and is brought by William F. Montross, James L. Clarke and Irving Emmons, under the name of Montross, Clarke & Emmons of New York.

Th second attachment is for $1,500 on an action of contract, and is brought by Hugh R. Gardner of New York city. The third is for $6,000 on an action of contract. It is brought by George B. Glover of New York.

The fourth, for $2,500, is also an action of contract and is brought by William H. Mackey of New York. The attorneys who filed the attachments are Russell & Russell of No. 27 State street, Boston.

YOUNG WIFE FACES ALLEGED ASSAILANT

Pleading innocence to the charge of assault upon Mrs. Maude G. Keyes, the young wife of Edward J. Kyes of No. 55 Otis street, Somerville, James P. Quigley of No. 22 Linwood street, Somerville, was to-day arraigned before Judge Wentworth in the Somerville Police Court. He was held in $3,000 until Monday.

Positive identification of Quigley as her assailant was made by Mrs. Kyes early to-day in the Somerville Police Station. Also a little girl who saw him go in the house identified him. Later Quigley said to Lieutenant Carter, "I'm up against it."

Scared by Little Boy.

Obtaining entrance to her home by means of his wares which she had selected from his wagon, a street vendor of strawberries nearly choked Mrs. Kyes into insensibility. He was scared away by the noise of a boy's footsteps downstairs.

Mrs. Kyes lives in the second story of the flat at No. 55 Otis street. Shortly after noon yesterday, she stepped into the street to select some strawberries. The pedler followed her to her kitchen with his box of berries while she went after her pocketbook.

Bought Berries From Him.

Upon receiving payment, he started to use abusive language. She ordered him to leave the house. Mrs. Keys stepped into the pantry to lay her pocketbook away and he grasped her.

The woman made a valiant struggle, but was slowly lapsing into unconsciousness when the man was frightened away. She was unable to cry because he held her by the throat.

Quigley is thirty-nine years of age and married. He has lived in the "Black Bottom" district of Somerville for twenty-five years, and is well known there.

CHINESE CITY DOOMED; TRIAD REVOLT GROWS

REBELS AUGMENTED BY NUMEROUS TROOPS, MARCH ON SWATOW, LEFT DEFENCELESS.

CANTON, China, May 31.—Ten thousand rebellious Triads are reported to be marching on Swatow, one of the important seaports. Unwarned of its danger, the city is said to be on the verge of capture. The news was brought to this city by couriers from the disturbed districts of Kwang Tung province.

A military force was recently dispatched from Swatow against the rebels, leaving the city practically defenceless except for several warships reported to be in the harbor. Messengers who brought the word of the advance declare that the rebels avoided the imperial troops, and then began a forced march toward the city, securing a lead of many miles. Both rebels and loyal troops are racing for the city.

It is not believed any danger is threatening the citidens of Swatow unless a vigorous defence is offered. The rebels so far have confined their depredations to killing civil and military officials. If warships, reported to be in Swatow harbor, try to defend the city, it is feared a massacre may follow in case the rebels capture the place.

Discouraging reports from other sections of Kwang Tung province states that hundreds of dissatisfied Chinese are joining the rebels, and the revolt is assuming gigantic proportions. A report from Amoy says that soldiers in several small towns nearby have mutinied and joined the revolt. Just how serious this danger may become is not known.

The defeat of a detachment of Triads yesterday by the troops with the loss of 100 men is said to have only aroused the rebels, and it is feared attacks will be made on villages throughout the province in retaliation for the punishment dealt out by the soldiers.

BOY HURLED TO DEATH BY SWIFT AUTO

Melrose Alderman Thrown From His Car, Collar Bone Broken, Hurt Internally

LITTLE GIRL RUN DOWN

Auto drivers, sweeping along in their swift machines, reaped a ghastly harvest yesterday, and as a result to-day a fourteen-year-old boy is dead and a five-year old girl and a man are lying at their homes with severe injuries, a frightful Memorial Day addition to the already long list of auto victims in Greater Boston.

George O'Hara, a youth living at Central avenue, Needham, while riding a bicycle on Hunnewell street in that town, was crashed into by George Armstrong, driving a fast-running auto, and received a fractured skull, from which he died without regaining consciousness.

Armstrong appears in the District Court to-day to answer to a charge of manslaughter. He was released on bail.

Little Flora Geogreda, five years old, living at No. 71 North Margin street, was knocked down by a touring car owned by George A. Arancio and operated by Frank V. Arancia of No. 160 Endicott street. One woman fainted as the auto passed completely over the little one. The girl was taken to the Relief Hospital and later removed to her home, where she will recover. George A. Arancio, who owns the car, lives on North street.

The third accident to mar the holiday was in Melrose, when Alderman Joseph H. Allen of that city was thrown from a runabout. He is lying at his home on Grove street, Melrose, with a broken collar bone and possible internal injuries. He was found on the ground unconscious by his son, Claude, City Solicitor of Melrose, who was running a car ahead of his father.

DIVORCED MINE KING MARRIES A THIRD TIME

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 31.—John Love Elliott, the mining millionaire, whose wife divorced him in Westchester County, two weeks ago, and received $1,000,000, has again married and is now on his way to Europe with his third bride.

The hasty wedding became known among Elliott's friends only yesterday and they had not even heard the full name of his new bride. She was said to be a Miss Moore, of West Sixty-fifth street, daughter of Mrs. G. F. Moore. The ceremony by which she was united to the mining prince was so quickly and secretly held that it amounted practically to an elopement.

The former Mrs. Elliott, now travelling with her daughter, evidently was unaware that her ex-husband had planned another marriage even while his lawyers were paying over the enormous penalty she won in her suit. But the marriage was no more a secret than her own divorce.

Having lived four years with her husband she suddenly brought the suit in the latter part of April. Even the name of the woman concerned was not made public, and at private sessions of the court the testimony was all submitted in two nights. When the final decree was entered on May 15 Elliott was in this country. His marriage to Miss Moore followed without an unnecessary day's delay and the couple started at once on their honeymoon abroad.

NINETY-TWO TECH MEN BITTEN BY LOVE MICROBE

Class, at Banquet, Cheers Record Campaign of Cupid; Plans Day at Circus.

Whether due to the fact that a long, cold Spring is particularly propitious to the propogation of the microbe of love; to the compactness of the Technology buildings, where the chances of Cupid's darts going astray are minimized, or to the confidence of each Tech boy that he will be able to make a living for two shortly after taking his degrees, certain it is that, although the course at the Institute is admittedly one of the most arduous at any institution of learning in the country, the senior class has found plenty of time to make marital plans for the future, while apparently entirely engrossed in solving the problems of electricity, mining and civil engineering.

At the class dinner, attended by practically every senior, at the American House last night, it was announced that, out of a total membership of 236, ninety-two members had become engaged during the course at the Institute, a record that most of the diners are of the opinion cannot be duplicated at any other college or university in the world.

President Lawrence Allen of the senior class, who compiled the statistics, made the announcement, and his figures were greeted with hearty cheers, joined in not only by the class members who had been bitten by the microbe, but by the other less for more) fortunate members of the class. To celebrate the victorious campaign of Cupid, it was resolved that the class attend the circus this afternoon, the Tech boys evidently being resolved that the engaged men have at least one more day of enjoyment before embarking on their matrimonial ventures.

The farewell dinner of the class of 1907, M. I. T., was marked by scenes of enthusiasm rarely equalled even in this city. Practically the entire class was there, not only for the purpose of enjoyment once more as undergraduates, but according to the time-honored custom of learning at the close of the festivities that all important fact, whether he was going to get his degree or not. There was a long period of suspense for the 200. It was given out that the faculty were having difficulty with a few cases, and it was long after 11 o'clock before Secretary Merrill of the faculty showed up with the "notices" which spelled success or failure. When they finally did arive, the successful ones did stunts that would have put an Indian war dance far in the shade. It is said that a far smaller percentage than usual will fail to get their sheepskins.

'LOW COWARD' CRIES GIRL OF DALRYMPLE

WORCESTER, May 31.—It is declared to-day that the missing Rev. Charles H. Dalrymple has only himself to blame for the whole affair becoming public. Had he not written from Chicago, where he evidently thought himself safe from an irate brother-in-law, to Church Treasurer Thomas Winter, and laid the blame for the whole matter on Miss Flora B. Weston, the beautiful young woman in the case, then, according to her mother, Mrs. Alvah R. Weston, Flora would not have turned on him and written and sent a full confession to Mrs. Dalrymple, which, it is believed, will form the basis for her petition for an absolute divorce.

Dalrymple has been driven out of Chicago, according to despatches to-day, because of the publication there of his wife's sensational interview, which effectually gave the lie to all the interviews he had issued previously.

According to Mrs. Driscoll, Miss Weston now has nothing but hate for Dalrymple, whom she characterizes as a low, despicable coward for laying the blame for his flight on her.

HOTEL MAN IS HOST TO CUPID; WEDS ACTRESS

The talk about town to-day, in theatrical circles and at the Adams House in particular, is the marriage of George Robinson Hall, son of Proprietor George G. Hall of the Adams House, to Miss Isabel Plunkett, a chorus girl in Joe Weber's company, now playing in Chicago.

"Young George," as he is known, to distinguish him from his father, apparently kept his wedding plans very much to himself. The ceremony took place in New York Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Cheshire of No. 24 Lenox avenue, New York city. Then the couple sent on announcements cards to Boston al followed the cards up by coming here themselves.

Dodge Congratulations.

They are now keeping the seclusion of bridal apartments in the Adams House, while the entire hostelry, from the "bellhops" up to the guests, are waiting with considerable interest for "Young George" to come out and be congratulated.

The bride's maiden name was Cheshire, Plunkett being merely a nom du stage. She is twenty-two years old, a strikingly hondsome blonde of medium height, with a graceful figure.

Mr. Hall met Miss Plunkett two years ago when the Weber company was playing at the Colonial Theatre. He was presented to her by Miss Kitty Wheaton, another girl in the Weber chorus, the notice of whose marriage to Frank G. Tullidge, the rich Cincinnati distiller, appeared in yesterday's papers.

Miss Plunkett and Miss Wheaton were chums, and their marriages come nearly coincidental.

Secret Trip to Gotham.

Mr. Hall was very attentive to Miss Plunkett when she was here two years ago, but it was not thought at that time that any serious attachment had arisen between them.

But last Tuesday night Mr. Hall left Boston for New York. He gave no hint of his trip. It is not certain that even his father was informed that he was about to acquire a pretty daughter-in-law. It is said that Paul Keith and Albert E. Musgrove accompanied Mr. Hall to New York and were present at the ceremony. Yesterday morning the bridal couple, with a few relatives and intimate friends, sat down to a wedding breakfast in a Broadway restaurant. Then Mr. Hall and his young wife started for this city.

"Young George" Hall is thirty-five years old. He attended the Prince School on Newbury street and later went to a private school. Then he started in at the hotel and now is assistant manager for his father.

Organized "Corner Club."

He is known in trotting circles. He is a meber of the Gentlemen's Driving Club and has had fast-steppers out on the local tracks. He is also a member of the Boston Athletic Club. He is particularly expert over the pool table, getting a ball on the "break" and then cleaning the board being no feat for him.

He is quite popular in theatrical circles and organized the famous "Corner Club," composed of a number of local theatre managers and others interested in things dramatic.

HUNT CLEW TO TRUNK MURDER IN PROVIDENCE

Detectives Seek Armenian Who Was Companion of Priest on New England Tour.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Learning that Father Caspar, the murdered Armenian priest, on his last mission trip through the New England States, on which he converted many to the new Armenian revolutionary society, was accompanied by an unknown Armenian who disappeared in Providence, Captain McCafferty of the Central Office has sent three detectives to that city to ascertain the identity of this man. He believes that, if their efforts are successful and the priest's companion can be located, he will be able to secure information that will be valuable in running down the men who committed the trunk murder. Captain McCafferty is positive that this man knows who the enemies were that Father Caspar feared and, with these facts in their possession, the detectives will be in a position to conduct a more systematic search. New York Armenians profess ignorance of the identity of the mission worker who travelled with the priest, and disclaim any knowledge of his present whereabouts.

Captain McCafferty is convinced from information received yesterday that the three Armenians accused of the murder of Father Caspar are in Manhattan, concealed by friends who had an interest in the removal of the priest for political reasons.

Certain Armenians who are supposed to have knowledge of value to the police have shown such alarm when interrogated that Captain McCafferty has been authorized by Commissioner Bingham to engage influential Armenians to explain the situation to their countrymen.

Charles Holopigan of No. 457 West Fortieth street denies that Sarkis Ermoyian, the owner of the trunk in which Father Caspar's body was concealed, was in his restaurant Sunday. Mrs. Holopigan, however, sticks to the statement that she saw Ermoyian in the restaurant Friday, wearing new clothes, two days after the murder.

Captain McCafferty said that under ordinary circumstances expressmen readily give information to the police, and he believes that the men who handled the trunk containing Father Caspar's body were friendly to the assassin and are keeping quiet to protect them.

Little credence is given by Captain McCafferty to the report from London that three suspects answering the general appearance of the murderers have been arrested by Scotland Yard detectives.

THERE'S a very cheap way in which to spend a joyful vacation. Miss Ina Grace Tabor discovered it, and her personal experiences should prove valuable. # ACCUSED OF GIRL MURDER, PROVES ALIBI

Efforts to Implicate Leon Graham in Staffeldt Slaying Fail.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Despite all efforts to implicate Leon Graham, now being held for attempted assault on five-year-old Mamie Luck, with the murder of Amelia Staffeldt, it was stated to-day that the prisoner had established a complete alibi.

Graham's story as to his whereabouts on the day of the Staffeldt girl's murder has been investigated by the police, who think Graham had nothing to do with the murder, and was not an accomplice of Henry Becker, who is being held for the Grand Jury charged with the crime.

When arrested for the attempted assault Graham denied all knowledge of the Staffeldt murder, and stated that he had been working all that day. This story was investigated and found to be correct.

Graham is certain of receiving a long term in prison for his attack on Mamie Luck at Corona on Wednesday. If he and Becker were chums, as the police have been told they were, the detectives will have ample opportunity to confirm it by investigation.

Becker pleaded to-day to have his cell in the Long Island City Jail changed. He wants more secluded quarters. The other prisoners in the jail have frightened him with their jeers and threats. They have told him that he is in danger of lynching, and that if he escapes a mob he will surely be sent to the electric chair. The man was in a pitiful state of collapse to-day.

SEAMEN OUT ON STRIKE; FRENCH PORTS TIED UP

PARIS, May 31.—The contemplated general strike of seamen engaged in the merchant marine went into effect to-day. Reports from all the great French ports say that officers and sailors left the ships together. At Havre the strike has tied up shipping to such an extent that it is extremely doubtful whether the French liner Provence will be able to sail to-morrow for New York.

The National Seamen's Union is dissatisfied with the policy of the government with regard to pensions.

At Marseilles the strike has tied up the port completely. Several liners are held up, deserted, at their docks. All the mails have been held up except those to the United States and Corsica, and it is said these will be stopped by the strikers to-morrow. The transports which the government has ordered ready for service may be used to carry these mails if they are interrupted.

PASTOR REPEATS CHARGES OF CRIME IN CANAL ZONE

Rev. Mr. Ferguson Replies to Government Criticism of His Assertions; Says Women Deceived.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, May 31.—The Rev. William P. F. Ferguson of Brooklyn, N. Y., editor of the Defender, the national organ of the Prohibitionists, has given to the Hearst News Service a signed statement replying to the government's denials of his assertion that the Canal Zone is a hotbed of vice and crime.

In his reply Mr. Ferguson gives names and addresses in support of his assertions, and makes the additional sensational charge that a government storehouse on the isthmus was deliberately destroyed by fire to conceal evidence of enormous deficits in one of the departments.

By Rev. W. P. F. Ferguson.

I read with considerable interest the article in the Hearst News Service report concerning my investigations in Panama. With the exception of some verbal inaccuracies it substantially represents a part of what I found and am reported as saying.

There are about 300 saloons in Colon, and, according to the statement of Governor Magoon, 600 in Panama. I note the Canal Commission is comparing my investigation to that of Mr. Poultney Bigelow. I may observe that dozens of men on the isthmus said to me that Mr. Bigelow's charges were truthful.

However, while Mr. Bigelow stayed in Panama only a few hours on his first visit, I was on the isthmus almost four weeks, and spent all that time in careful investigation. I have in some instances reported hearsay evidence, but in my articles and in my speeches I have reported it as being hearsay evidence. Mr. Bigelow may or may not have been correct. The statements I have made I know to be true.

I am much entertained in the remarks of Mr. Jackson Smith. Mr. Smith is the head of the Department of Labor and Quarters.

Dozens of thoughtful, intelligent canal employes assured me that Smith's department reeks with graft.

When the Mount Hope storehouse was burned, while I was on the isthmus, under circumstances that left no doubt in the minds of most persons that it was intended to be burned, scores of employes, some of them men in prominent positions, expressed with little hesitation the opinion that the building was burned to cover an enormous deficit.

It was a significant fact that when the fire was discovered every reel of hose had been displaced and the wrench attached to each fire hydrant was one that would not fit the hydrant. It was said the reels had been taken away to be painted, and for half an hour there was no stream of water on the fire.

As to Mr. Smith's relation to the vice question there is an interesting chapter. Several months ago his department imported a lot of Martinique women, and the report went abroad that he was officially importing them for immoral purposes. This was strenuously denied by Smith and the Canal Commission. Some of the women were sent home and some took husbands among the Jamaica and Martinique negroes in the employ of the Government.

With one exception every man whom I heard mention the subject on the isthmus expressed the belief Mr. Smith was responsible for the importation of these women. The one man who dissented assured me that while it looked bad for Mr. Smith he thought he "was too nice a gentleman" to do such a thing.

Deceived, Women Assert.

A missionary on the Isthmus, to whom two of these women appealed for help, told me that they assured her that while they had come to the Isthmus under promise of honest work, they were met on arrival with improper suggestions.

Now Mr. Smith denies that here were infamous resorts within "fifteen feet" of the United States Postoffice at Colon. I never said "fifteen feet," and have been reported so only by a typographical error, and Mr. Smith is merely dodging behind that error. He knows and cannot avoid knowing that when you stand upon the platform in front of the United States Postoffice at the corner of Front and Eleventh streets you see directly in front of you, about 150 feet feet away, the Casino Cafe, and that place never fails to have from one to ten women in its barroom, besides running a big gambling joint. I entered that barroom at least a dozen times for the purpose of getting personal information, and never failed to find women there.

They were drinking and approached every man who entered. "Buy us a drink, mister," was their stereotyped greeting. Most of them were American women.

Fight in Casino Easter Sunday.

The last time I was in the Casino on Easter Sunday there was a big crowd, including ten or twelve sailors from Mr. Taft's yacht, the Mayflower, and a fight took place between two canal employes, both of whom were arrested and dragged off to jail by the native police. The bartender of the Casino was a young American, from San Francisco, who did not appear to be more than twenty years old.

Mr. Smith also knows that when you stand on the platform of the postoffice, just to your right, and not more than 200 feet away, is the big Hotel Frances, a three-story barn, owned by Mr. Yung, the land agent of the Panama Railroad. This building is built on a lot which the Presbyterians tried to rent from the United States government for a church. They were, however, refused. The lot was given to Yung, according to the statement of Mr. Bierd, the general manager of the railroad, as a reward for his services.

Mr. Yung and Mr. Bierd are goth government employes. The lot on which the Hotel Frances stands and the lot on which the Casino stands, as well as the land occupied by hundreds of saloons in Colon, are owned by the United States government and leased to the occupants. This place, the Hotel Frances, is a huge three-story building and has two bars.

Mr. Smith also knows that just beyond the Hotel Frances, across Bolivar street, and not 400 feet from the postoffice, is the Hotel Orleans, one of the most infamous resorts on the continent. This place is not only corrupt morally, but is in such a sanitary condition as to be a menace to the whole city.

PROSECUTION SCORES RICH IN FRISCO GRAFT

Heney Denounces "Men Higher Up" Who Are Trying to Block Course of Justice.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANSICO, May 31.—Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney has given out a statement reviewing the local graft situation in which he scores bankers, merchants and other men of influence with avowedly seeking a miscarriage of justice in the prosecution of the men "higher up," who have been caught in the dragnet of the startling exposures of bribery and graft in this city. He charges the banker with plotting to save President Patrick Calhoun of the United Railroads and says that the committee of seven recently appointed to co-operate with the prosecution to assume charge of the city's welfare was part of a policy of fraud and hypocrisy inspired by rich men now under indictment.

"The graft prosecutors are now facing the gravest crisis that has arisen since their work commenced," says Heney, "and San Francisco is facing the gravest crisis in its history. The emissaries of the bribe giving corporations and the political plug-uglies, prize fight promoters and petty plunderers of the lowest and most vicious dives in the city are working together in a systematic endeavor to mislead the public and confuse the issues.

"The moment that a politician is charged with crime the cry is raised by himself and friends that the attack is prompted by political motives. The moment we commenced to uncover rich criminals, the attitude of many of the bankers, merchants and predatory rich changed. The moment a very rich man is charged with crime, the cry is made by himself and friends that he is being persecuted for business reasons or malicious motives. This is the cry which was promptly raised by Mr. Patrick Calhoun, and all the other rich men who have been indicted by the grand jury and their numerous and influential friends have joined the chorus."

"In the final analysis, concludes Heney, "a great majority of people are influenced for or against prosecution involving very rich men or influential politicians by the effect upon their own possible pecuniary or otherwise selfish interests.

Banks With Calhoun.

"The great banks of New York that are subject to the influence of Mr. Patrick Calhoun and his associate stockholders and bondholders in the United railroads have brought pressure to bear upon their bank correspondents, in San Francisco and Los Angeles to stop the graft prosecution against the rich men.

"In conclusion we assure the public that it is our intention to enforce the criminal laws without fear or favor and to expose as fully as possible all the corruption which has existed in the municipal affairs of the city.

"We denounced as lies the charges that we are prosecuting any man or men for malicious or selfish motives or to gain any possible end. Our appeal is for patience and the chance to make good."

FLOWER FAMINE AT NASHUA, N. H.

NASHUA, N. H., May 31.—Memorial Day here was characterized by a flower famine. On account of the unprecedented cold weather, very few garden or wild flowers were available for decorating graves and the Grand Army had to be content with some of the hardy and common varieties. The scarcity of garden flowers also increased the demand for hothouse supplies which were limited in quantity and quality and sold at about double the usual price.

$80,000 FIRE AT NEWARK.

NEWARK, N. J., May 31.—The plant of the Waverly Paper Box Board Company was destroyed by fire early to-day, the loss amounting to about $80,000.

GIRL BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Sight of Eye Destroyed by Disease—Tried Five Doctors but Grew Worse—In Agony Eight Months—Parents Discouraged, Until They Tried Cuticura Remedies

IN ONE WEEK ALL SORES DISAPPEARED

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor said it was. We called in the family doctor and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we 'phoned for doctor No. 3. He came over and looked her over and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone, but that he could help it. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. ☛ Mailed Free, On Humors of Skin and Scalp.

SAYS SHOWERS WILL HERALD JUNE'S ARRIVAL

Weather Man Offers No Excuse in His Conduct nor Promises to Do Any Better.

WARM, PERHAPS, MONDAY

And I sez to the Weather Man, sez I: "Is it goin' to be warmer?"
And the Weather Man he answers me back: "Nuh."
And I drew my snickersnee and amputated the Weather Man by the head.
And the Judge next day, he says, sezee: "Justifiable homicide."
—Meteorological Memoirs.

The local forecast to-day is:

"Fair to-night; Saturday showers. Light north to east winds."

Knowing that showers are due in June, the Weather Man carefully provides them for to-morrow. But he says nothing about any rise in temperature, though warm weather is due and sadly overdue. To-day is a bit more comfortable than the preceding days, but it is far short of the balmy weather we have been educated to expect at this time of year. Apparently there is no real genial atmosphere in sight before the first of the week.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH IN ROTHSCHILD'S VILLA FIRE

TWO DAUGHTERS AND TWO SRVANTS OF RICH CIGAR MAN PERISH IN FLAMES.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., May 31.—Fire destroyed the costly cottage of Jacob Rothschild, Ocean avenue, to-day, causing death to two children and two servants, injuries to seven other persons, some of whom will die, and for a time threatening to wipe out a large part of the cottage settlement in the seaside resort.

The Rothschild cottage has been occupied by the family of Walter Schiffer of the firm of Krebs, Wertheim & Schiffer of New York, secretary of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

The dead are Marion Schiffer, ten years old; [illegible], fourteen years old; Tillie Notson, servant; Mary Bligen, servant.

Burned and injured: Walter A. Schiffer, hands, face and body badly burned in making rescues; Mrs. Walter Schiffer, hair burned off, face and body scorched, will probably die; B. Citroen, guest of the Schiffers, hands and face burned; M. Beeleer, guest of the Schiffers, burned about the face and body, condition serious; Ivan Relton, butler, leg and arm broken by jumping from a window; Katie Murray, kitchen maid, burned about arm and body; in a serious condition; Miss Sehtark, governess, burned about the face and body; Josephine Hottman, cook, hair burned off and internal injuries by jumping from second story window.

Children Had Retired.

Mr. and Mrs. Schiffer and their two guests were playing whist when smoke was smelled. All of the servants and the children had retired and Mr. Schiffer passed through the butler's pantry to investigate. As he opened the door into the kitchen the room burst out in flames.

"Get the children and awaken the servants!" Mr. Schiffer cried, as he emerged from the kitchen with his clothing afire. Mrs. Schiffer and the guests sprang from the card table and dashed upstairs. While the two guests were pounding on the door of the third story bedroom to awaken the servants Mrs. Schiffer tried to find her way through the dense smoke to the three rooms occupied by her children and the governess.

Mother Overcome by Smoke.

She was overcome by the smoke and fell against the door of the governess room. Miss Sehtark opened the door, her own room then being filled with smoke, and tried to lift Mrs. Schiffer. Failing in so doing, she passed a roped sheet about her body under her arms and dragged her to a window.

The fresh air revived Mrs. Schiffer, and she darted back to save her children. The flames were then bursting through the floor, and as she passed them her own garments caught fire. Dashing into the room occupied by little Marion she grabbed her up from the bed which was then burning, and ran down the stairs and out onto the lawn. The night gown of the child was burned off and Mrs. Schiffer's clothes were afire from her feet to her neck.

Schiffer Drops Exhausted.

Mr. Schiffer fought the fire and raced through the house, getting out the occupants, until he fell from exhaustion, his clothes ablaze.

The cottage was one of the handsomest residences in the west end, and its destruction means a loss of about $75,000. The flames spread to the two handsome residences adjoining and both families got out safely, although they had narrow escapes. Both cottages were badly burned. It was estimated that the damage to them would almost equal the loss of the Rothschild villa.

WEDS WOMAN FOR WHOM HE MADE FORTUNE

Broker Marries Client After Gaining $1,000,000 for Her in Cotton.

FAMILY WELL PLEASED

NEW YORK, May 31.—With the closing of a balance sheet as between broker and client, which showed profits of nearly $1,000,000 in cotton speculation, Palmer Bennett Morrison and Mrs. Francella Cole Butler have entered into a new alliance.

Mr. Morrison, figuratively, delivered over the fortune he had won, and Mrs. Butler, a rich widow, gave her hand to the young broker.

Mrs. Butler was the widow of John G. Butler, a millionaire real estate dealer, who died ten years ago. She determined to take a "flyer" in cotton six years ago and selected Mr. Morrison as her broker. Her original venture was small, but through Mr. Morrison's shrewd manipulations, the profits were large.

She intrusted large sums to him, and he added rapidly to the principal.

Mrs. Butler has four children, of whom two daughters are married and a son and a daughter are in college. She informed the children a week ago that she was going to wed Mr. Morrison. They had met him at their mother's home and admired him greatly. Far from there being any objection on their part they wished their mother all joy in the newly found happiness.

There were present at the wedding Mrs. Livingston Waterbury, a daughter of Mrs. Butler; Miss Maud Butler, a student at Vassar College, and John J. Butler, a freshman at Yale. Livingston Waterbury, who was present, is the well known polo player and society man. Mr. Morrison was attended by his brother, Dr. William H. Morrison of No. 157 West Ninety-first street.

HORSES AND AUTOS LOST IN BIG FIRE

CHICAGO, May 31.—Twenty auto trucks and four automobiles were destroyed and twelve horses were burned last night in a fire on Twenty-ninth street. The blaze caused a loss of $100,000, the interior of the building being ruined.

BOY WANTED TO LIVE, BUT INTELLECT SAID SUICIDE

HERMAN UNGER, PITTSBURG YOUTH, WRITES NOTE AND THEN SWALLOWS POISON.

"My body wanted to live, but my intellect wanted to die. My intellect won."

Beside the groaning form of Herman Unger of Pittsburg, who ended his life yesterday at Clark's Hotel, was found this tragic note, indicating the fearful struggle of mind over matter before his suicide with morphine, his death frenzy being victorious in the psychological conflict.

Poison ended the contest, while thousands were gay on the streets of Boston and thousands more were showing their hearts' mourning by placing flowers and wreaths upon the graves of loved ones passed away.

The suicide was discovered by guests at the hotel, who, hearing the moans from Mr. Unger's room, notified the clerk. The latter forced the door and found the almost lifeless body of the Pennsylvanian, fully dressed, outstretched on the bed. On a table near by were powders and papers. One note read:

Rigestered on Tuesday.

"To all whom it may concern—I have taken my life by using sulphate of morphine. UNGER."

Unconscious and dying, Unger was put into an ambulance and rushed to the City Hospital, where he died shortly. Two letters were found among his possessions. One requested that all mail addressed to him at the hotel be forwarded to his home city; another referred to "R. W. Hale, No. 60 State street, Boston," and the third mentioned "George W. Dexter, No. 59 Walnut street, Neponset."

At Dr. Hale's office nothing is known of Unger. Mr. Dexter has removed from Neponset. In the dead man's overcoat pocket was found a paper addressed to "H. Unger, Montford Lodge 794, I. O. O. F., Pittsburg, Penn.," and in his room Medical Examiner McGrath discovered two drinking glasses and a bottle which had contained poison.

In Frisco During Holocaust.

Unger registered at the hotel on Tuesday. He asked to be assigned to a commodious room, saying he intended to stay several days. He did not make known his business here. A quiet, well-mannered man, very respectably dressed, Unger was about the lobby much of the time Tuesday evening and Wednesday, and even a few hours before his suicideing the clerks saw him passing through the corridors.

A Pittsburg dispatch says:

"Herman Unger left here two years ago and went to San Francisco, where he was thought to have perished in the earthquake. Previous to going away he sold barber supplies in the Pittsburg district for five years. Unger was a Hebrew, fifty-three years old. He was a collector of old coins.

"When Unger left this city he is known to have had a large coin collection and several valuable old violins with him. Two sisters live in New York."

EAT ICE CREAM 7 NEAR DEATH

UPPER ALTON, Ill., May 31.—Seven of the fourteen graduates of the Upper Alton High School are near death from poisoned ice cream served at a reception given by Miss Lucie Rice.

The other graduates and Superintendent Heywood Coffield are critically ill.

Miss Grace Lowe ate two dishes and she has been unconscious ever since. The doctors say at least seven of the students will not live to receive their diplomas.

A chemical analysis will be made to determine what the cream contained.

CHORUS GIRL IS HAPPY AS FIELD'S BRIDE

Anna Kaminski of Boston Says She Will Quit Stage if Poet's Son Demands It.

TO PLAY IN HOME CITY

Wedded for her third husband to Frederick S. Field, the "Little Boy Blue" of his famous father's (Eugene Field) poem, Anna Kaminski, the popular Boston actress, declares that though her two previous unions to Hub men ended sadly, she now knows real happiness for the first time.

The pretty comic opera singer, who won fame in "Woodland" and "Peggy from Paris," arrived here from Chicago Wednesday night and brought to her mother, Mrs. John Kaminski of South Boston, the tidings of her most recent marriage. Field captured her heart while she was playing in Chicago. He will join her here soon. His bride appears at the Colonial on Monday in "The Time, the Place and the Girl."

In speaking of her latest venture on the matrimonial sea, at the home of her mother, when her two former husbands were alluded to, she laughingly said as her eyes snapped with pleasure, "Yes, I know, but I didn't get the right one, that's all. I am perfectly happy now.

"Will I remain on the stage? Well, Fred don't want me to, so I suppose I shall have to give it up before long if he insists."

Mrs. Field was first married to M. H. Bush of Boston when she was sixteen years old. She was divorced after a short married life, and a year later was married to E. M. Hill, also of Boston. It was not long before he, too, fell under the decree nisi, and then the talented little Polish singer went upon the stage.

In 1903 she appeared at the Tremont in "Peggy From Paris." Later she played at several New York playhouses, returning to Boston in February, 1904, to fill a long engagement with the "Woodland" company. She then left for the West and was playing in "The Time, the Place and the Girl" at the Lasalle Theatre in Chicago when the courtship of the "Honeymoon Girl" and "The Little Boy Blue" began.

BRIDE OF "LITTLE BOY BLUE"

Thrice married Anna Kaminski, a South Boston beauty, famous as a stage songbird, declares that she is now completely happy for the first time as the bride of Frederick Field, son of the late Eugene Field and famous as the original "Little Boy Blue."

SEVEN KILLED WHEN TROLLEY CARS COLLIDE

Fleeing Motorman Captured by Police Chief in Long Chase in Automobile.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

ELYRIA, O., May 31.—Seven persons are dead to-day, another is fatally injured and seven are in a dangerous condition as the result of a rear-end collision last night between two Cleveland, Southwestern & Columbus traction cars. C. N. Fuerndiener, the motorman in charge of the rear car, was arrested to-day and lodged in jail on a charge of manslaughter.

The dead: Henry M. Billings, sixty; W. C. Allen, sixty-eight; Donald Sala, five; Edward O'Donnell, sixty-two; Charles B. Porter, twenty-four; Homer Allen, seventeen; E. W. Wurst, fourteen, all of Elyria.

The injured: Marguerite Butler, fifteen, Elyria; Mabel Dean, fifteen, South Amherst; Arthur Hoadley, Cottesbrook; Jack Leslie, Carlisle; Mrs. J. P. Sala, Elyria, will die; W. S. Avery, conductor of the first car; George W. Chamberlain, thirty, Madison, O.

Caught on Platform.

The dead and injured were caught on the rear platform of the forward car. The buffer of the second car ploughed through the vestibule of the first and jammed passengers and wreckage into a mass that took fourteen minutes to disentangle.

Judge C. G. Washburn of Elyria, whose son was on the wrecked car, has announced that he will summon a special Grand Jury to fix the responsibility for the disaster. The first car was crowded with passengers. Many were on the rear platform. The second car was empty.

Didn't See Car Ahead.

Motorman Furndeiner of the second car, declared he had run over a dog and in looking to see how badly it was injured, failed to notice that the car ahead had stopped. He jumped before the crash and ran for another car.

Police Captain Whitney and David Troxler, in the latter's auto, followed the car he took to Lakewood and arrested him at his home. He was arraigned before Mayor Chapman of Elyria and pleaded not guilty. He waived examination and was bound over to the Grand Jury. In default of $5,000 bail, he was locked up in the county jail.

Billings died a few minutes after the collision. The others died at the city hospital.

RECONCILED, CROKERS MEET IN DERBY WEEK

News of the Former Tammany Chief's Reunion with His Family Is Confirmed.

LONDON, May 31.—Mrs. Richard Croker of New York, wife of the former Democratic boss of that city, who has been living in Ireland for several years, has ordered the manager of the Carlton Hotel, where she and her daughter are stopping, to reserve rooms for her husband, who is to arrive in London Sunday and remain during Derby week.

This confirms the news recently cabled to the BOSTON AMERICAN of the coming reconciliation of the Crokers after years of separation. It is said that the reconciliation has been brought about by Miss Croker.

Mr. Croker is now entertaining Norman E. Mack, Democratic national committeeman from New York, at Glencairn, his place near Dublin. Mr. Mack and Mr. Croker will come to London early Sunday and Mr. and Mrs. Croker are to attend the Derby on Wednesday together. The ex-Tammany chief is particularly hopeful for the success of his horse, Orby, which is entered in the great race.

Mrs. Croker, despite many stories which have been printed in the London papers of the coming reconciliation, has refused to discuss the subject.

The only thing Mr. Croker would admit when he was seen on his Irish estate is that he is coming to London.

GIRL ATTACKED; PEDLER IS HELD

James P. Quigley, a street pedler of No. 22 Linwood street, Somerville, was arrested early to-day by the Somerville police charged with attacking pretty Mrs. Maud G. Kyes, twenty years old, at the latter's home, No. 55 Otis street, Winter Hill, yesterday noon. The young woman was found lying on the floor in her kitchen by her husband an hour later. She was barely conscious and her throat still bore the marks of the strangling she had received from a strange man who had called at the house selling strawberries.

According to the story told the police by the young woman, she ordered the hawker out of the house and then he attacked her.

After several hours' investigation, the police located Quigley and placed him under arrest. He was lying in bed at his home, fully dressed. The man is 39 years old and married.

ORGAN MAKERS VOICE PROTEST AT LONG HOURS

No Pay for Overtime, Declares Statement of 100 Men Now on Strike.

The 100 members of the Organ Workers' Union on strike gave out the following statement:

"The skill in the workmanship of organ making is greater than that of any other trade and the wages are lower and the hours longer than in any other trade. The men are compelled to work from 15 to 24 hours in one stretch. We have never been given overtime pay for extra work. On April 1 we sent a request to our employers for an increase of 10 per cent. in wages, for a 50-hour week and for time and a half overtime. After ignoring our first letter, they finally granted us a conference.

"These conferences gave us hope that they were not adverse to a 50-hour week at 54-hour pay. From May 8 to May 15 the employers were waited upon and asked if they would grant us the 50-hour week on the basis of 54-hour pay, but all flatly refused to accede to even this moderate request. One of the firms led us to believe that an agreement could be reached, and their employes were therefore allowed to remain at work. However, on being asked to sign an agreement, he refused and his men quit work.

"The Jesse Woodbury Company signed an agreement with us on May 25, and work was accordingly resumed. On May 25 we received a communication from the Church Organ Builders' Association, stating that at its meeting June 1 a decision would be arrived at, with a view to a settlement of the trouble. The men were requested to return to work in the meantime, but as we had made all concessions possible, and as the communication suggested further concessions on our part, we did not return to work.

"The State Board of Arbitration is endeavoring to arrange a conference between the employers and the union officials. We have written the board that we are willing to take part in the conference."

DERAILED CAR SMASHES WALL; 8 BADLY HURT

Open Trolley, Crowded with G. A. R. Vets, Jumps Track on Fitchburg Curve.

FITCHBURG, May 31.—Eight persons were badly injured, one it is believed, fatally, and several others sustained painful bruises yesterday by the derailment of an electric car of the Fitchburg & Leominster railway, upon which members of the local Grand Army post, women and children, were being carried to Forest Hills Cemetery to decorate soldiers' graves. The most seriously injured were:

Ira G. Wilkins, city assessor and a member of Post 19, rendered insensible for a time by a blow on the back of the head.

Edward W. Ackley, assessor and Grand Army man, left wrist fractured and concussion of brain.

John Whitney of Fitchburg, thrown out and badly bruised, but no bones broken.

Miss Eva Bigelow of Fitchburg, thumb sprained and both legs bruised.

Mrs. George H. Romane of Fitchburg, numerous bruises about the body.

Mrs. Jane Patten of Somerville, bruised and cut about the face and head.

Miss Irene Bennett of Fitchburg, legs cut and bruised.

The accident, which was probably due to the spreading of the rails, occurred as the ten-seated open car, full of passengers, was rounding the curve at the corner of Everett and South streets. The car suddenly left the track and shot diagonally across the street, narrowly missing a telegraph pole, and plunged into a stone wall with such force that all the passengers were thrown forward and many hurled to the ground.

Physicians were soon on the scene and attended to such of the injured as needed their services, who were sent to their homes. It is feared that Mr. Ackley will die.

BOY DROWNS IN POND.

WORCESTER, May 31.—William Launier, aged fifteen years, was drowned yesterday by the upsetting of a canoe in Stoneville Pond, in Auburn, a suburb. His companion, Edward J. Doherty, aged sixteen, was rescued by the occupants of another canoe.

NAMES WRONG ON MONUMENT TO GROVER DEAD

BROCKTON, May 31.—Scores of people gathered about the monument which was erected by the city a year ago in commemoration of the fifty-eight persons who lost their lives in the Grover explosion yesterday when the Rev. A. F. Pierce, who was chairman of the relief committee at the time and who has since compiled a history of the disaster, discovered that three of the names of the dead engraved on the monument were wrong.

The names of Lena Bergson, which appears upon the stone, should read Leon Bergson; that of Jesse Chandler should be Jessie Chandler, and the name of Rihard Spriggins is spelled with one g. The matter has aroused considerable discussion throughout the city and heavy expense will have to be incurred by the city to correct the errors.

The monument, as well as the graves of the unknown dead about it, were profusely decorated with flowers.

SOCIETY QUEEN RESIGNS TO BE A DRESSMAKER

"Far More Satisfaction to Work Than Idle," Declares Mrs. Garrison.

SHOCK STUNS HER FRIENDS

NEW YORK, May 31.—Mrs. William R. Garrison, the prominent society woman, whose husband is a member of some half dozen exclusive New York clubs, has startled exclusive circles in this city by entering the dressmaking parlors of Mrs Osborne on Madison avenue. There she is busy designing the gorgeous raiments for her old friends and acquaintances of the "400."

Mrs. Garrison is strikingly handsome, and is noted as a charming hostess in her villa, Retallack, at Tuxedo, where, until recently, she lived with her sister Grace.

Took Friends by Surprise.

It was with great surprise that her host of friends learned that she had suddenly decided to go into business. They could scarcely believe it, and told her she would not like it at all. But she declared that she is delighted with her new venture, and feels that she is doing just the right thing.

"I have been here almost two months," she said. "Of course, it is different from the life I have been used to, but I like it—like it immensely. It is far more satisfactory than idling away your time.

"We have," she continued, "given up the house at Tuxedo for a time at least. I have rented it to Mrs Havemeyer and am living in the city so as to be close to my work. It is real work—just as you would find in any large dressmaking establishment. I cannot say exactly what I do, for I do many things, and I am trying to be a good saleswoman.

"I am not connected with the company here in any way. I am just a worker and proud of it. Many women have taken up business and made successes, and with expenses of social life growing as they are, I think many other women will feel impelled to try to add to their incomes by entering the business world."

While Mrs. Garrison was speaking she was standing upon a short flight of marble steps. The fingers of one hand were just touching at times the water in a fountain beside the steps, in which fish were playing. Roses and palms peeped from the various corners of the reception hall. In response to a suggestion that some businesses scarcely appeared like business, she replied:

"There is no reason why there should not be beauty in business. It does not interfere with work, in fact it aids the workers. I think most of the offices of men are far more handsome to-day than used to be the rule. I can assure you that everything I have found in my work thus far is strictly business."

Mrs. Garrison smilingly declined to discuss the question as to the profits she found in business. "I am getting along all right," she said. She was ready to talk business, but refused to extend her comments upon the conditions of society as forcing recruits for the world of work.

QUITS '400' TO MAKE GOWNS

MRS. WILLIAM R. GARRISON.

HUB MAYO MEN HONOR DAVITT

In Wells Memorial last night the Mayo Men of Boston commemorated the anniversary of the death of Michael Davitt, the founder of the Land League, which, if carried out as he had planned, would have crushed the feudal system in Ireland. P. J. Lynch of the Boston Post and Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown were the speakers of the evening. There was also an attractive musical programme.

Mr. Lynch, who though only a schoolboy at the time, was secretary of a branch of the Land League in Mayo, spoke on "Some Recollections of the Days of Davitt."

Senator Vahey of Watertown, in his eloquent style, paid a glowing tribute to the character of his friend Davitt, and pointed out that his life work was a protest against the intolerance and injustice of the British land system and cruelty, which fortunately the early colonists banished from these shores.

Ex-Senator T. J. Collins also paid a hearty tribute to Davitt.

TO RAISE FUND FOR DESTITUTE FAMILY

A fund is being raised for the widow of the late Timothy J. McCarthy, who died from a broken neck by falling from a tree while exterminating gypsy moth in Medford on Friday, May 14. The death of Mr. McCarthy has left the widow and five children, the eldest being eleven years, in destitute circumstances. Subscriptions can be mailed to the home of the widow at No. 80 Albion street, Medford, or to Lewis R. Cohen, No. 31 Gay Head street, Roxbury.

THINK STUDENT SHOT AT FRIEL

NEW HAVEN, May 31.—The police and the college authorities to-day began an investigation of the mysterious shooting of Arthur Olney Friel, a Yale sophomore, whose home is in Manchester, N. H. Friel was shot in the left arm in his room on the third floor of Lawrence Hall, presumably by a sneak thief, whom he discovered at work in the room and who shot at the student to prevent capture.

The police have secured no clue to the identity of the intruder. They incline to the opinion that he is a student.

SQUADRON AT HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 31.—The British cruiser squadron, consisting of the cruisers Goodhope, Hampshire, Roxburgh and Argyle, arrived here yesterday from Bermuda.

FACE STRIKE OF TELEGRAPHERS

NEW YORK, May 31.—General Superintendents from the South, West and Middle West have been called to New York by President Clowry of the Western Union Telegraph Company, it is thought for the purpose of preparing for a possible strike of Western Union telegraphers. Three general superintendents have already arrived in this city in the last few days, and others are said to be on their way hither.

Superintendent Frank Jaynes of San Francisco has arrived from the coast. Superintendent Jacob Levin of Atlanta, Ga., and Superintendent T. P. Cook of the Chicago division of the company have been in New York several days.

The strike, if it comes, will involve 20,000 men in this country and Canada.

FISHERMEN ESCAPE DEATH IN MID-OCEAN

Two Men Storm-Tossed for 3 Days Without Food or Drink in Leaky Dory.

CAUGHT IN FOG TRAWLING

How they finally escaped the perils of the deep after tossing for three days and three nights in a leaky dory, with nothing but three biscuits to eat and no water, Fred Olsen and Alphonso Landry of the fishing schooner Flora S. Nickerson are to-day telling their shipmates.

Two weeks ago last Monday, the Nickerson was fishing down on Quero Banks, off Nova Scotia. On a foggy morning her men had gone with their dories to set the trawls. Soon the fog settled down, but all of the dories save that of Olsen and Landry found their way back to the schooner.

Landry and Olsen parted their trawl and so lost the schooner. For five hours they drifted around, and when the fog finally lifted the Nickerson was not in sight. They rowed around until 8 in the evening, when they hoisted a small sail and determined to try to make Canso, Nova Scotia, 140 miles distant. Landry was familiar with the coast of Nova Scotia and he set his course by the stars. All Monday night they sailed, and all day Tuesday they were guided by the sun.

Tuesday night a storm swooped down on the men. It became so violent that they had to take down their sail and use it as a drag to keep before the wind. The waves broke over the frail dory, incessantly threatening to swamp it.

Rescued by Steamer.

The storm lasted the greater part of Wednesday, and the men, who had long since eaten their biscuits, were famished for food and desperate from thirst. Finally the wind fell and they reholsted their sail, but, meantime, they had lost their reckoning completely. All that they knew was that the land lay somewhere to the westward, and in that direction they feebly steered and rowed.

On Thursday morning they sighted the cable steamer Mackay Bennett bound for Halifax. The big steamer nearly ran the men and dory down before their shouts were heard. Olsen and Landry were taken aboard and given the best of care and taken to Halifax, from whence they arrived here early to-day, after a week spent there recuperating.

When the Nickerson came to port yesterday morning her flag was half-masted, but a pilot tug spoke to her down the harbor and told her that Landry and Olsen had been saved.

8 ATTRACTIONS AT REVERE ON COUPON IN SUNDAY AMERICAN

Eight leading attractions at Revere Beach have been selected for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN multiple coupon offer next Sunday.

One of the coupons is for the Theatre Comique. This is a brand-new enterprise at Revere Beach, opened yesterday by Manager A. A. Ashley. It is backed by Chelsea capital. It is considered one of the finest moving picture theatres in the country.

The regular admission is ten cents. The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN coupon and five cents are good for a ten-cent admission on all day Tuesday and Friday of next week.

Another coupon in the multiple coupon of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is for the Crescent Garden Theatre. The admission there is ten cents if you do not have the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN coupon. If you have that coupon it costs you only five cents to get in on either Tuesday or Thursday of next week. The bill at the Crescent Garden Theatre for next week, as announced by Slattery brothers, the managers, includes: Will J. Gordon and company, in "Asking Ma"; Mardo, the jugler; Amy Virginia Bernard, the vocalist; the Tedesco trio, trick bicyclists; the Musical Holbrooks, Charles Farrell, the original "Old Man"; Melville Eastman, with song sheet, and the biograph.

Another part of this multiple coupon gives you a ride on the wonderful flying horses in Manager Bopp's Rough Riders Hippodrome. The admission is five cents. On next Monday and Tuesday a coupon and five cents entitles you to two rides: that is, you pay your five cents to get in, and then the coupon gives you a second ride free. The Hippodrome is newly fitted up. It has an electrical orchestra equivalent in musical power to an orchestra of twelve players. Upstairs, over the horses, is a balcony cafe where tables are placed in boxes as in a theatre.

On the Roller Coaster.

The same coupon applies to Spear's three-way figure eight roller coaster. A coupon and five cents gives you two rides every day next week except Sunday. The roller coaster ride is a thrilling one. In the hottest weather it is cooling.

The fifth part of the multiple coupon gives you free admission on the first five days of next week to the Rollaway Rink, the splendid 225-foot skating rink, managed by McLean brothers. The regular admission to the rink is one dime. The rink is banked up on the ends, an up-to-date novelty in roller skating rinks.

The sixth part of the coupon is for the Mystic Rill, one of the highest class attractions at Revere Beach. It is under the management of James H. Bentis. On the Mystic Rill journey one rides through mysterious mazes, under electric lights, through an elaborate garden and by many beautiful scenes. The admission price is ten cents. Holders of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN coupon get a ride for five cents and their coupon, on Monday and Friday of next week.

The seventh coupon is for the Musical Railway, a wonderful ride sixty feet in the air. A coupon and five cents gives a ten-cent ride on the first five days of the week.

The eighth coupon, with five cents, gains admission to the brand new Automobile Cup race, a new and wonderful show with real racing automobiles. The coupons are good the first five days next week.

THOUSANDS DELIGHT IN NOVEL BEAUTY OF VANITY FAIR PARK

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will give its readers next Sunday a coupon in each copy of the AMERICAN admitting one free to Vanity Fair at Providence on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Vanity Fair, Rhode Island's newest, biggest and handsomest Summer resort, was thrown open to the public on last Saturday. Yesterday it harbored an immense throng of more than 75,000 people from all over Southern New England. The majority of the big shows were in full operation and the crowds found ample opportunity for enjoyment.

Among the leading bills are Wormwood's performing bears, dogs and monkeys; Paula Piquet, the European balancer, and the Harringtons in a sensational aerial act, and the Vahlund Telka trio, in a novel acrobatic act.

In the point of sensationalism, the greatest of all Vanity Fair's attractions is "Fighting the Flames," and since the opening of the park it has been the most talked of show. This production drew immense audiences yesterday. More than 35,000 people witnessed the show, which is replete with sensational features intermingled with comedy and interesting situations.

Other twentieth century attractions are the scenic theatre, Hall of Laughter, Ball Room de Luxe, Japanese Congress, a great band of "genuine Georgia darkies" and a host of other minor attractions, all of which were ready to-day.

In the College Inn.

In the College Inn hundreds of visitors ate, drank and made merry. From the time the gates of the park opened yesterday the Inn was thronged with hungry pleasure seekers, and the fare was highly commended by all.

In the Rathskeller, too, many people dropped in to chat and to listen to the strains of some popular air rendered by the orchestra.

The magnificent Clam Bake Hotel is all but completed.

BEAUTIFUL CANOBIE LAKE PARK ON LIST OF AMERICAN GIFTS

The BOSTON AMERICAN will publish a coupon on Sunday entitling the holder to enjoy the flying horses, circle swing, roller coaster and have a free ride in the steam launch upon the lake at the great Canobie Lake Park, Lawrence, which opened yesterday.

The coupons will be accepted at the box offices in Canobie Lake Park for those attractions on Monday and Friday of next week, day and evening. This will be a saving of twenty-five cents to holders of the coupons upon the two days of next week specified. The coupons will be good only on Monday and Friday.

Canobie Lake is one of the best pleasure resorts of New England. It combines the natural and artificial advantages to be found in the other parks, with shade and boating.

Special railroad facilities from Haverhill, Lawrence, Lowell, Nashua, Manchester and way towns are provided. Manager Woodman of the electric system controlling the park has beautified Canobie Lake Park even beyond the point attained in previous years.

18,000 VISIT NORUMBEGA'S ATTRACTIONS

Beautiful Norumbega Park at Auburndale-on-the-Charles opened for another season yesterday and more than 18,000 persons entered the gates.

Everywhere trees were bursting into their Spring costumes of green, flowers were growing as though there was no such thing as cold weather, and freshly painted buildings added their quota to the general appearance of newness and brightness.

The new Riverside promenade proved a pleasant spot from which to watch the canoes float gracefully up and down the Charles River. Many availed themselves of the advantages of the boat house and went canoeing. Others took the four-mile trip up and down the river in the launches.

The denizens of the zoological garden, fresh from their Winter's trip to Havana, were looking unusually happy and healthy. The pride of the zoo this year is the baby buffalo, which was born just six weeks ago and made his first public appearance.

The great covered open-air theatre, which seats 3,000 persons, was filled to overflowing at both performances. An excellent vaudeville bill was given. It included Lee Brothers, Gaiety Quartet, Eckhoff and Gordon, Martinettie and Sylvester, Irving Jones and kemegraph.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 31.—John Fraser, who has turpentine interests in Mississippi and Florida, is in this city to fight the plans of John D. Rockefeller and the Standard Oil people to absorb the naval stores interests of the South. It is, he says, a fight in which every small producer and dealer is interested.

THOUSANDS CHEER BOY IN DARING AIRSHIP FLIGHT

Beachey, Young Airship Inventor, Cavorts at Will High Above Wonderland Park.

Wonderland, the big pleasure park at Revere, which made itself so popular with the Boston and New England public during its first season last year, begins its second season with new features and increased drawing power. Lincoln Beachey, the boy airship inventor, is the star at Wonderland for this opening of the Summer. He made his initial appearance there Memorial Day, when several thousand people saw him make a splendid fifteen-minute flight in the air. He made his airship soar over the heads of the admiring multitude with deceptive ease, having apparently perfect control of his mysterious vehicle.

James E. Hardy, the high wire king, is the headliner in the open air circus. Mlle de Loto, a comely young woman, puts on a clever contortionist act.

Eight Hundred Alligators.

Notable among the attractions added this year are: Battle Abbey, the Florida Jungle, with 800 alligators and crocodiles fresh from the Overglades, the Temple of Music and "Under the Sea," in which Diver Wallace exhibits the work of submarine workers.

Fighting the Flames is still more thrilling this year, for the East Side tenement fire scene is greatly embellished and far more replete with incidents true to the life in that part of the Metropolis. Yesterday's mammoth crowd which surged into the fire temple gave hearty accord of its appreciation of the management's efforts.

The Battle Abbey is a collection of superb war paintings depicting the conspicuous battles in which General Grant figured, Past Commander S. J. Simmons of the Charles Russell Lowell Post, G. A. R., in the role of lecturer, had no trouble in holding the interest of his audience.

The chutes and the scenic railway were just as popular as ever and long crowds of eager fun-seekers stood patiently in line for half-hours at a time to gain a seat.

"Hooligan" on a Wheel.

Ponies with intelligence almost human and performing monkeys make Blake's animal show a miniature circus and a strong asset to the Park's well-regulated entertainment. "Happy Hooligan," the $10,000 bicycle monkey, is a winning feature of this attraction. The barnyard circus, with trained goats, pigs and dogs, completes this meritorious exhibition.

The Velvet coaster pleased men, women and children in great numbers.

The First Corps of Cadets Band played in the handsome new stand, erected at a cost of $10,000, near the lagoon.

EXPLOSION CAUSES $20,000 LOSS BY FIRE

OIL CITY, Pa., May 31.—A mysterious explosion occurred in the joint pumping station of the Producers, Refiners and the United States Pipe Line companies yesterday. The plant was destroyed by the fire that followed, loss about $20,000.

How to Exercise the Bowels

YOUR Intestines are lined inside with millions of suckers, that draw the Nutrition from food as it passes them. But, if the food passes too slowly, it decays before it gets through. Then the little suckers draw Poison from it instead of Nutrition. This Poison makes a Gas that injures your system more than the food should have nourished it.

The usual remedy for this delayed passage (called Constipation) is to take a big dose of Castor Oil.

* * *

This merely make slippery the passage for unloading the current cargo.

It does not help the Cause of delay a trifle. It does slacken the Bowel-Muscles and weakens them for their next task.

Another remedy is to take a strong "Physic," like Salts, Calomel, Jalap, Phosphate of Sodium, Aperient Water, or any of these mixed.

This merely flushes-out the Bowels with a waste of Digestive Juice, set flowing into the Intestines through the tiny suckers.

* * *

They do not waste any precious fluid of the Bowels, as "Physics" do.

They do not relax the Intestines by greasing them inside like Castor Oil or Glycerine.

They simply stimulate the Bowel-Muscles to do their work naturally, comfortably, and nutritiously.

* * *

They are put up in thin, flat, round-cornered Enamel boxes, so they can be carried in a man's vest pocket, or in a woman's purse, all the time. 878

The time to take a Cascaret is not only when you are Sick, but when you first suspect you need one. Price, 10c a box.

The Kidnapping of Lady Elke

By Margery Stanley Clark

Synopsis.

DALLAS HOOD and Mona Elke are engaged to be married. Lady Elke, mother of Mona, is violently opposed to the match and forbids a meeting between the two. Through conspiracy with Lady Elke's butler Dallas obtains admission to the house and has word with Mona while Lady Elke is absorbed in bridge.

Dallas forms a desperate plan to obtain the stern mother's consent to the marriage, and although the details are not told to Mona, she readily consents to be a party to the plot. She obtains Lady Elke's consent to meet what she supposes is a dressmaker on the following afternoon in an obscure street in London.

CHAPTER II.

Trapped!

THE following afternoon, about 5 o'clock, a hansom drew up before a dingy-looking house in one of the myriad streets of Earl's court, over which the shadow of the Great Wheel brooded, and therefrom Lady Elke descended alone—for a violent headache had prevented her daughter accompanying her.

Having paid the cabman, not without high words on both sides, Lady Elke ascended the steps and rang the bell. The door flew open so quickly as to suggest that some one had been waiting behind it, and a little maidservant, whose dignified age had probably only just got into double figures, immediately asked her to walk in.

"They seem to expect me," Lady Elke thought as she rustled down a passage after the little maid. "Evidently this Madame What's her name is very keen to secure my patronage and I expect I shall be able to fix my own price."

Poor Lady Elke! She little knew that she would have no chance of "fixing her own price."

The maidservant stood aside and ushered the visitor into a back room and disappeared instantly, closing the door.

Left alone, her ladyship looked around for creations and found none. The small room was plainly furnished—a bright fire and a brighter lamp supplied light and heat, closely drawn curtains lent an air of coziness, but as regards the object of her visit there was not so much as a needle or thread to be seen.

A Prisoner!

Five minutes passed. Lady Elke's never patient temper became restless—she rose and rang the bell vigorously.

There was no immediate answer. She rang again even more emphatically. Then, after a brief interval, she crossed the room, inspired by the laudable determination to make things unpleasant for Mme. Alice Pomfrey and her entire household.

But unfortunately for the carrying out of this resolve the door refused to open.

Even then she was not so alarmed as she was angry. After shaking the door violently, and banging it with her hands, she flew to the bell and pulled it unceasingly. It was only after some moments of this exhilarating employment that the total lack of sound made her come to the unwilling conclusion that the wire must be broken.

Then, a sudden fear seizing her, she rushed to the closely curtained window. Wrenching the curtains aside, she was confronted by a solid wall. The window had been bricked up!

With a cry of terror Lady Elke sank down on the floor prostrate with fear for perhaps the first time in all her masterful, autocratic life. For now no shadow of doubt existed in her mind that foul play was intended.

"It's like that poor girl who was decoyed away in Liverpool," she muttered. "The police found her remains shockingly mutilated in an empty house a fortnight after. This is evidently an empty house and they will soon come and murder me. My poor Mona!"

Then suddenly she gave a little shriek, for under the door a piece of folded paper had been slid.

With a bound Lady Elke flung herself on the door.

"Let me out, let me out!" she cried, and then recoiled, as a voice spoke.

"Silence—unless you wish to be gagged. Your cries are of no avail—no one can help you. You are completely in our power. Read our ultimatum. On the stroke of midnight we will come for your answer."

Then silence again, except for a heavy tread, which died away slowly.

The Message

Trembling, with nervous fingers, Lady Elke picked up the paper and, advancing to the middle of the room, read by the light of the little lamp the following extraordinary epistle written in a clerky hand on a sheet of foolscap:

"To Lady Elke:

"You are our prisoner, and by no effort of yourself or your friends can you be delivered living from our hands, except on one condition!"

Poor Lady Elke's hands trembled so at this announcement that she nearly dropped the paper. Making a great effort to control her emotion, however—for, to give her her due, she was as plucky as she was passionate—she read on:

"This condition is that you promise to pay us the sum of ten thousand pounds."

"Ten thousand pounds?" cried Lady Elke aloud. "Why, it's regular blackmail. I won't! No, they shan't get it out of me! And yet if I don't."

"If you agree you shall go free, after fulfilling certain conditions.

"We shall require you to write a note to your daughter stating that you are safe, and asking her to send your check book, and another to your banker requesting him to meet the check you are obliged to draw in consequence of a sudden call. On the conclusion of these little matters we pledge ourselves to let you go free, as soon as we conveniently can, with due consideration to our own safety—probably in about a week's time.

"We may mention that your daughter is suffering no uneasiness on your account, as she has received a message stating that you have been called away to nurse a sick friend at Hook, in Surrey, and may be absent several days. She will, therefore, feel no uneasiness and attempt no interference on your behalf.

"If you refuse we shall reluctantly be obliged to remove you to a less agreeable place of confinement until sooner or later you yield.

"If you accept our conditions, kindly write your promise to that effect on the back of this ultimatum and push it under the door. At midnight we will return for your decision. In your own interest we advise you to give in at once, as you will be obliged to in the end, and every hour you delay after twelve o'clock will cost you an extra thousand pounds. Your obedient servants,

THE KIDNAPPERS."

Capitulation

The clock on the mantelpiece ticked cheerfully, the fire cracked brightly, the lamp shone steadily, and Lady Elke read and reread the ultimatum. And the more she read it the less she liked it.

No wonder she did not like it. There had been several cases of abduction and strange disappearances in the papers lately, and there seemed little doubt that she had fallen into the hands of some powerful gang who made a regular business of decoying away people and holding them for ransom.

No, she didn't like it at all, for she saw she was completely in their power and would have to pay, much as she hated it, ten thousand pounds! To be done out of ten thousand pounds—she, who grudged every penny she spent.

Love of money was her ruling passion. It was to that that she was sacrificing her daughter, refusing to let her marry the man she loved because he was not very wealthy.

Suppose she resisted and refused to pay? Was there any one who was likely to come to her rescue if she held out? Her daughter was happy in the belief that she was in Surrey. How well these demons had laid their plans! They evidently had been spying on her actions and knew that she had been down to Hook to see a sick friend a few days ago.

Lady Elke shuddered when she realized that for weeks possibly she had been dogged by a desperate set of villains.

Six — seven — eight — nine — ten — eleven had struck; the lamp burnt low and the fire went out. Only the clock continued to cheerfully portion out eternity.

And then—when that busy hand pointed to a quarter before midnight, Lady Elke wrote her promise on the back of the ultimatum with pen and ink that she found thoughtfully provided.

(To Be Concluded To-morrow.)

PROCTOR IS SHIELDED BY G. O. P. BOSSES

WANTED.

Information that will lead to the whereabouts of Robert G. Proctor, fugitive from justice, sentenced to serve ten months in the House of Corection, Deer Island, for the larceny of $225, the property of John G. Bestgen. Following is the description of the fugitive:

NAME..........Robert G. Proctor.
ADDRESS.......No. 113 Sea St., Quincy, Mass.
OCCUPATION...Secretary.
AGE............Thirty-six.
HEIGHT........5 feet 7 inches.
WEIGHT........176 pounds.
COMPLEXION...Medium.
HAIR...........Brown.
EYES...........Blue.
NATIONALITY..American.

Robert G. Proctor, former secretary to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who is wanted to serve a sentence of ten months at Deer Island for stealing $225, which John C. Bestgen gave him to hand to the Republican State Committee as a campaign contribution, is still missing.

It is believed that several prominent Republicans know his whereabouts, but they have not offered to assist the District Attorney, who is determined to put Proctor in jail. The District Attorney does not expect any assistance from them.

It has been said that Proctor is in Washington in hiding, and it is known that the Washington police have made no effort to arrest him.

Why?

In Washington Proctor is as well known as Mayor Fitzgerald is in Boston, and if he is there it would be as easy to find him as it would be for a native of Boston to find the State House.

Why do not the Boston police officials, who have frequently sent officers across the Continent for thieves, make an attempt to find Proctor?

Why is it that District Attorney Moran is the only man who is really anxious to bring about Proctor's arrest?

Herbert Parker, counsel for Proctor, says that he does not believe Proctor is trying to avoid going to jail.

Here is what Mr. Parker told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I don't believe that Proctor is trying to avoid serving sentence. In my last talk with him some weeks ago I rehearsed the case with him fully and spoke of his ability to live the thing down. I prepared him for the sentence, were my exceptions overruled. Proctor seemed resigned to his fate and I had every assurance that when final judgment was reached he would be ready to enter on his ten months' sentence. I'm of the opinion that Proctor is still unaware that he has been ordered to begin sentence. I have had no answer from him to my letters sent to his old Washington address.

"I fully believe that when he is informed of the decision of the Supreme Court, setting aside the exceptions and ordering the sentence to stand, that he will appear in Boston and at once enter on his sentence. I don't know where Proctor is. My relations with him were but those of attorney and client. The result of the exceptions I communicated to him and stated in that letter the necessity of his coming to Boston and accepting sentence. I have had no letter from him for several weeks. He was in Washington when I last communicated with him. Where he is now, I do not know."

GIRL LOSES HAIR PLAYING "INDIAN."

NO DECORATION DAY FOR THESE SOLDIERS

Here Is the Song of "Warriors" That Are Forgotten

America honored her heroes yesterday. Flowers, flags, processions and speeches reminded us of the courage that MEN have shown on the field of battle.

We did well to honor those that died for duty. But there are other soldiers in this world for whom there is no especial Decoration Day, and we call attention to these forgotten soldiers to-day by reprinting here Joaquin Miller's poem about them:

THE bravest battle that ever was fought,
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not;
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with a cannon or battle shout,
With sword or nobler pen;
Nay, not with eloquent words or thought,
From mouths of wonderful men.

But deep in a walled-up woman's heart—
Of woman that would not yield,
But bravely, silently bore her part—
Lo, there was the battlefield.

No marshalling troops, no bivouac song,
No banner to gleam and wave;
But, oh! these battles, they last so long,
From babyhood to the grave.

Yet faithful still as a bridge of stars,
She fights in her walled-up town—
Fights on and on the endless wars,
Then—silent, unseen—goes down.

Oh, ye with banners and battle shot,
And soldiers to shout and praise!
I tell you the kingliest victories fought
Were fought in these silent ways.

Oh, spotless woman in a world of shame!
With a splendid and salient scorn,
Go back to God as white as you came,
The kingliest warrior born!

LET US CONTINUE TO HONOR THE MEN THAT DIED FIGHTING, LET US CONTINUE TO DECORATE THEIR GRAVES.

BUT LET US NOT FORGET THE MOTHERS THAT GAVE THOSE SONS TO THE COUNTRY AND SUFFERED IN THE GIVING MORE THAN THE MEN SUFFERED IN DYING.

Good Ways to Earn Pin-Money at Home

THERE are plenty of ways by which industrious girls may earn extra pocket money. Two things are wanted, patience and thought, with, perhaps, a very small outlay of capital.

Those who are fond of animals can easily intimate the same to friends and neighbors, and the diligent, look-ahead girl will make it her business to know when, perhaps, some of her richer sisters and brethren are going away and wish their pets to be well looked after in their absence.

Many are willing to pay well for a dog's board or lodging for favorite cats. Canaries are little trouble to look after, and caring for a couple of dogs, cats and a small aviary would yield a nice little weekly sum. There is a woman in a busy quarter of New York who, in the Summer, when the richer half go away, makes quite a respectable amount. No capital is needed for this.

Those who have the artistic bent can turn it to good account by designing pretty table decorations, such as candle shades, pie dish frills, cake frills, etc., flower pot covers, fire screens, etc.

Don't buy the tissue paper already crinkled—crinkle it yourself. This can be done by folding up your paper lengthwise, after having cut it to the requisite shape, and drawing it sharply and absolutely perpendicularly between the finger and thumb.

Turn the paper round from time to time so as not to keep from covering the same ground, and the result will be beautifully crinkled paper, far better and far more artistic-looking than even the ready-made article.

A few cents will purchase a large amount of various tints of paper. A local stationer might very easily be induced to place a few artistic designs in his window, and if he sold any orders for more would follow.

A clever girl not long ago conceived the idea of painting beautiful flower designs and leaves on wax candles, and sent a few examples of her skill to a well-known firm. She got a lot of orders.

The candles looked charming and decorative on the dinner table. She used moist water colors and cheap brushes. Her original outlay was 15 cents. And she made many dollars.

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

FOR BLACKHEADS

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Kindly advise me what to use for pimples and blackheads, as my forehead is frequently troubled with pimples and my chin is always covered with blackheads. Please prescribe something that will not injure the skin, as mine is very tender.

LOVING.

THE presence of blackheads in the chin all the time shows that there is a constant state of clogged pores and that they need cleaning out by the use of a face brush. Use the rotary motion with plenty of hot water and castile soap, after which bathe the face in cold water into which a little benzoin has been added. Your stomach probably needs looking after and you will do well to avoid pastry, sweets, fried things and coffee. Dab the pimples with peroxide when they first appear and see if they cannot be driven away by this treatment. When you have cleaned the chin thoroughly of blackheads try cleansing the face with a good cleansing cream, instead of using water on it, and see if you cannot keep more from forming. Bathe the chin frequently in cologne or alcohol. This will help to refine the pores, which will be larger than normal after the blackheads are removed.

REMOVE TARTAR

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Lately you published a formula for removing tartar from the teeth. I lost my copy and would be under obligations if you would publish it again. I also have so much hair on my arms that I cannot wear short sleeves and would like to know if there is any way to remove it. Will singeing it make it grow thicker?

N. R.

FOR removing tartar mix fifteen drops of hydrochloric acid in two teaspoons of water. Apply to the teeth with a tiny fringed strip of cheesecloth wound around a toothpick. Rub all over the teeth and well down into the gums, then brush the teeth with a soft brush which has been dipped into water and covered with camphorated chalk. Rinse the mouth well.

Anything that takes off the hair makes it grow coarser when it comes back. Why not bleach it with peroxide, when it will not show as much as you think.

Wedding Etiquette at Church and Home

AT a church wedding the groom with his best man generally await the bride at the altar. On entering the church the ushers come first, two abreast, the bridesmaids next, also two abreast, the maid of honor, matron of honor or flower girl next, and finally the bride, leaning on the arm of her father or some male relative.

On leaving the church, the bride and groom go first, the flower girl or matron or maid of honor next, then the bridesmaids in double file as before or with the ushers. The best man goes out with the maid of honor. The father or male relative joins the mother and other relatives on leaving the church.

At a home wedding the bride and groom may enter the parlor together, preceded by the ushers and bridesmaids, or the groom may enter with the minister and the bride with her father or male relative.

Guests invited to the reception go in leisurely fashion from church to residence, giving the bridal party time to arrange its ranks for the arrivals.

Wedding Reception

The bride introduces her husband to any of her friends whom he may not know, and he performs a like service for his bride.

Guests pay their respects first to bride and groom, congratulating the man and wishing the woman much happiness. Then, if other members of the bridal party are in line, they must be greeted, and it is only ordinary courtesy to seek out the parents of both bride and groom and present felicitations.

If a buffet breakfast or lunch is served, guests come and go to the dining room as at an afternoon tea. If a formal breakfast is served the bridal party is seated first and guests are grouped at small tables. Small boxes of wedding cake are generally piled upon a convenient table in the hall for guests to carry away as souvenirs.

Etiquette of Gifts

Wedding gifts may be sent to the bride at any time after invitations are received. They must be acknowledged immediately upon receipt by the bride-to-be in a friendly, personal note.

The family pays all the expenses of the wedding, including cards, the groom paying only for the ring and the bride's bouquet, the minister's fee and the carriage which takes him and his best man to the house or the church, and himself and his bride from the house to the depot.

The glove on the finger which is to receive the ring may be split open before the ceremony, thus saving confusion.

The bride may carry a white prayer book instead of flowers if she so desires.

The groom at a day-time wedding must wear a frock coat and gray trousers. The plea offered by some men that they look better in sack suits is to be ignored on this occasion.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

A DILATORY WOOER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a nice young man five years. He loves me dearly, I know, but is too bashful to ask me to marry.

Do you advise me to propose to him? If so, kindly tell me what to say, and when would be the best time.

MAY.

I SHOULD think at the end of five years' courtship he might have overcome his timidity. It is never a woman's place to propose. Tell him that you feel that you are standing in each other's light, and that perhaps it would be better to part. That might stir him up a bit, and the fear of losing you overcome his bashfulness.

NOT VERY THOUGHTFUL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-one years of age and have kept steady company with a man ten years my senior for about eight months—in fact, it is understood between us that we are to be married some day. He has told me to tell my parents about it, which I did. Now, do you think it is their place to speak to him on the subject, as he calls twice a week regularly?

And, dear Miss Fairfax, kindly tell me what you think about this: His salary is $12 per week, yet he never treats me to anything, nor takes me anywhere. If I knew he was saving his money I would not care, but I know he doesn't save one cent. He pays $5 a week board and spends the balance going out with his friends. He smokes and drinks very little. Now, don't you think he might spend just a trifle on me occasionally, to show me that he really loves me, as he says he does? What would you do if you were me? I love him dearly and have lots of chances to go out with other very nice gentlemen friends of mine, but I would not go out with any other while I go with him, much as I love enjoyment.

READER.

AS he only pays $5 a week for his board, he certainly should save or else spend some of it on you. It might be a good plan to tell him that you cannot marry him until he has saved something. Tell him that you feel that if he really loved you he would rather save his money than spend it foolishly. He should speak to your parents first.

Dorothy Dix Says It's Time for Men to Organize 'Fathers' Clubs'

Then the American Child Will Get a Fair Chance

BY DOROTHY DIX

THE most deplorable effect of American fathers being fathers in name only is naturally to be found among boys.

The hoodlum, the street gamin, the beardless lads who play the poolroom, and smoke cigarettes, and the anaemic youths who are old in vice before they are old in years are more to be pitied than condemned, for they are poor, unfortunate half-orphans, the sons of men who are so busy looking after the stock market and the grocery trade that they have no time to look after their children.

As in the case of their daughters, these men justify their personal neglect of their sons by saying that no children ever had a better mother than their children have, and that she is doing and will do everything to raise them up into being fine men.

Now the plain truth, that every man knows in his own soul, is that no woman, no matter how good, and conscientious, and tender, and loving she is is fitted to properly bring up a boy alone and unaided.

She is dead sure to be either too lenient or too strict, too indulgent or too Spartan. She puts too much stress on little things, and lets big things go. She tyrannizes over the lad, or lets him bulldoze her. She frets, and worries, and nags him about the non-essentials, and is blind as a bat to the things that really count.

Never Understands Him

No matter how much a mother tries she never really understands a boy, or sympathizes with him. She can't put herself in his place because she never had the impulses, nor the desires, nor the aspirations of a boy. She never wanted to be dirty and grubby, and go about with a pocket full of fishing worms, or keep a dead cat under the bed.

In reality every mother's ideal of what she'd like her boy to be is a cross between Little Lord Fauntleroy and a plaster saint.

She is secretly envious of her friend's little Percy who is always immaculately dressed, has taken a prize at Sunday School, who says, "Oh, fie!" when he bumps his head, and who prefers to sit in the parlor and read fairy stories to going out to play with the rough, rude boys on the street.

When she perceives that her own son takes to dirt as naturally as a duck to water, that he finds his soul affinities in newsboys and street urchins, that he has no perceptible yearnings after an education, and the higher things of life, and that he has to have the catechism beaten into him while he picks up slang and profanity as a magnet does the needle, she gives away to despair.

She can see nothing but a dark and gloomy future stretching before him, and she is utterly at a loss to know how to deal with him, and ninety-nine times out of a hundred she takes the wrong course.

If only the boy had a father who would take him by the hand and show him the realities of things—the glittering saloon, with its gay young men opening wine, and the dirty drunkard, blear-eyed, sodden and disgusting, sleeping off his stupor in a doorway.—Dorothy Dix.

Boy with a Real Father

Far otherwise is it if the boy is lucky enough to have a real father at this critical juncture of his life.

The man understands the boy because he was just such a boy himself, and he knows that in the little human animal lies the making of a real man. He sympathizes with the boy's desire to play hookey from school, because there were Spring days when he played the truant himself when he was a boy. He keeps his desecrating hands off the boy's collection, because he recalls the time when he had the collecting mania, too.

Above all, he respects the boy's dignity, because he remembers the mortification it was to him when his mother flaunted before other boys the apron string by which he was tied to her.

There likewise comes, too, a time in every boy's life when he has a profound contempt for everything feminine. It is a phase of youthful experience as inevitable as the measles. The boy lives through it and gets over it, but while it lasts he scorns his mother and his mother's opinions.

She doesn't know the things that make up his world, and he considers her a fool. She has no idea of what the batting average of the league of last season was. She couldn't tell you to save her life whether Princeton, or Yale, or Harvard won the last football match, and her ideas about pool and croquet are that they must be similar because they are played with balls. Neither does she do any of the things that the boy considers dashing and sporty. She doesn't smoke, nor drink, nor gamble, and so he pooh-poohs her advice on every subject as being the goody-goody counsel of a well-meaning but ignorant individual

What a Boy Needs Is a Father's Advice

Needs a Strong Hand

It is then that a boy needs the strong hand of a man over him, a man whose opinion he will respect because the man is in the world and of it, and knows the thing that the boy knows.

It is at this period of their lives that most boys get their first start on the downward road, and there is no thought more pathetic than that almost all of them might be saved the journey that is so thorn-strewn for themselves and those who love them if only they had a father.

If only the boy had a father who would take him by the hand and show him the realities of things—the glittering saloons, with its gay young men opening wine, and the dirty drunkard, blear-eyed, sodden and disgusting, sleeping off his stupor in a doorway; the gaming table with its feverish excitement and its spurious appearance of easily won wealth, and the haggard-faced embezzler behind the prison doors or the trusted clerk dead in the morgue; the painted women with their paint rubbed off, and the wrecks of men that lie about their doorway.

But the poor boy has no father. He has only a casual acquaintance with a man that he is a little afraid of, and very shy with, and with whom he has never had a real free conversation in all of his life, and so the boy gets his knowledge of life from other people whose only interest in him is to make him pay for the experience that he obtains.

The Father's Excuse

The American father's excuse for relegating the rearing of his children to others is that he is so busy trying to make money for them that he has no time for anything else.

It is a poor excuse, for the best thing that a father can give his child is not money, but himself. If you do not believe this, look about you and see how little great fortunes have done for those to whom they were bequeathed.

They have made the girls who have inherited millions the prey of titled fortune hunters, and the boys worthless spendthrifts, whereas the men and women who really count in every community are almost universally those whose fathers and mothers gave them little besides personal love and training.

It is time for men to get together and organize a few "Father Clubs," and spend a little of the time that they use now in discussing the Panama Canal and the Railroad rate bill in heart to heart talks on how to regulate a boy of fifteen, and restrain a girl who is bent and determined on marrying a drunkard to reform him.

When that happy day arrives the half orphan will be abated, and the American child will really have a fair chance in life.

DOROTHY DIX.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE"

CHAPTER XXXII.—Continued

Copyright, 1907, by American Journal-Examiner

THERE was a curious aching keenness in the nurse's tone, an almost pitiful earnestness, as though her destiny hung on his answer. Alfred Harding noticed it, but it aroused no suspicion within him. He could not see the terror on her quivering face, because she kept her head bent down.

"No," he said quietly. "I am not afraid, because I love her. But I cannot be blind to the fact that the taint may be there. It seems to me that it is developing even now in the brother."

"In Jack Heath?"

Sister Rachel's voice was still calm. She forced it to be so, since how could she, a hospital nurse, know enough of Jack Heath to feel more than a gossiping interest in him? But the chill of a sudden anxiety showed itself in her haggard features, and a pang of intensest anguish had shot through her already lacerated heart.

Alfred Harding nodded.

"Yes. Do not speak of it to others; although, for the matter of that, it is already being whispered about the town. It is said that Jack Heath is getting himself into trouble at Harvard, that he gambles and bets, is leading a generally dissipated life, and is getting heavily into debt. The prodigacy is, I am afraid the work—whether conscious or not—of Gilbert Wynn. It was he who first put the idea of betting into the young fellow's head. His influence has been baneful from the first, and especially baneful to a lad in whose blood there may be an inborn predisposition to crime."

Verbal Knife Thrusts

He did not dream—how should he?—that his every word was a knife thrust to her shrinking flesh, pitilessly rending nerve and soul of she whom he accused, that it was from her—from her whom all who knew her blessed, whom he himself revered—that he declared the taint to have come, the "inborn predisposition to crime," which, in the world's eyes, cursed alike her daughter and her son. And she was surprised when presently, in a sharp, strained voice, she said:

"Is it not wrong to pass judgment thus on the children of a woman who may not, after all, have been guilty?" She waited a moment, breathing quickly, and then continued: "It seems to me a harsh and cruel thing to say of a child, 'He has evil in his blood, and evil he must do,' because the father or the mother sinned. And in this case of the Heath murder what real proof is there that it was Mrs. Heath who committed it?"

She paused, as if to await his answer. But, before he could give it, she went on again: "You may think condemnation affords proof enough of her guilt. But it is not. The law is not infallible. Human justice errs often. It is only divine justice that cannot err."

A tremor shook her. But her voice grew calmer and firmer. "I think there is no actual proof that it was Mrs. Heath who murdered her brother-in-law," she said.

Alfred Harding shook his head slowly.

"Every Proof!"

"I am afraid there is every proof of it," he gravely dissented. "Perhaps you do not know the case well, Sister?"

Did she not know it? She shuddered inwardly. Had not the whole dreadful story been burned into her brain? Ay, and even branded in humiliation upon her body during every year of the long time that had elapsed since its happening? Aloud she rejoined:

"I know it in every detail."

Then, seeing the surprise deepen upon his face, she added quickly:

"People have alluded to the crime so often since I have been here near the Heath mansion that I grew curious about it at last and wanted to understand it. So I have been reading the case in the old numbers of the New York newspapers."

This was no falsehood. She had in very truth been studying the reports of her own long-past trial in the back numbers of the newspapers.

"And it seemed to me, as I read, that there was reason—much reason—to think that Claudia Heath may after all have been innocent," she added. She spoke in a low voice, still looking down, and she walked well with her firm, free step. No one would have guessed that she was pleading her own cause. Then suddenly she lifted her head.

"There were others in the ground of Heath Hall on that night. Supposing Mrs. Heath were to prove there were two persons who have never been connected with the crime. Gilbert Wynn, of whom you have just been speaking, seems to have got out of the matter too easily. Is there no likelihood of his having been guilty of the murder?"

A Woman's Hate

Her voice had grown eager; her bitter hate for the man whom she believed to have committed the crime for which she suffered, and who was now accused of leading her son astray, was rising anew in her breast, tumultuous in its repressed fierceness. But Alfred Harding only smiled.

"Not the very least," he said. "You might almost as well ask if there was any likelihood of poor Higgs having done it, or Mr. Jolly. For my own part, I cannot doubt Claudia Heath's guilt. You may think that the fact of her reprieve from death argues an uncertainty as to her deserving the capital sentence. But it was not so. She was reprieved on account of the strong provocation she had received.

HIGH HONORS FOR OLDS IN THE READVILLE RACES

Both Touring Car and Runabout Win in Their Respective Events.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Exceptionally high honors were scored by the Oldsmobile in the motor events of the Bay State Automobile Association at Readville yesterday afternoon. The touring car and the runabout captured first honors in their respective events, making a clean sweep of the boards, filling the cup of success to the very brim, and making it a veritable Oldsmobile day truly in keeping with the celebration which was being enacted in New York City. Both victories were the result of the hardest kind of fighting, the 100-mile touring car event being wrested from Morrison and the Stearns at a time when it looked as though victory was to perch on the larger car of the two entered by that thoroughbred sportsman, who is admittedly one of the most thorough sportsmen among the motorists of Boston. The second event was captured from the Jackson car after a very uphill fight, the like of which has never been duplicated on the motor track at Readville.

Many interesting and exciting contests have been ridden on the track at Readvilel, but never was such a contest witnessed as that which was produced by the 50-mile runabout class. It was a race from start to finish, replete with interesting and exciting periods, there being something doing almost all the time.

Runabout Race Interesting.

Of the two events, the runabout was by far the most interesting and exciting. This was unquestionably owing to the greater number of entries and the fact that battles raged all along the line and were not confined to the two leaders. At one time it looked as though the Jackson was a winner, hands down. She had fought her way to the front and held her own to the thirty-sixth mile, when as a result of her constant nagging of the much heralded and greatly over-estimated steamer, she lost her grip, and instead of continuing a winner was forced to finish the race tied for sixth place. It was a hard blow, and one that would not have been experienced had Burman been content to let the steamer have her burst of speed and go travelling along at his high rate of speed.

The Oldsmobile captured this event in 1h. 3m. 24s., the American finishing second, covering 48 miles; Royal Tourist third, with 45 miles to her credit; Corbin next, with 43 miles; Stanley, 42 miles; Jackson and Grout, 41 miles each; Crawford, 38; Knox, 31. That was the standing when the Oldsmobile finished her handsomely fought contest.

At the start of the runabout race the American jumped to the lead, when the Oldsmobile went up and held the premier position to the sixth mile, when the Jackson let loose a tremendous sprint. These two got away from the field, the steamer, of which great things had been expected, falling to the centre of the field. The Jackson went good and true, likewise did the Oldsmobile, and mile after mile they fought each other, with the American trailing along in third position some distance in the rear.

Never was a battle more handsomely fought than was that between the two leaders, and never did two men exhibit any greater generalship than did Burman at the wheel of the Jackson and Allen at the throttle of the Oldsmobile. Both acted like veterans. The Jackson was going as true as a die, and just held her own against the Olds, her operator having evidently made up his mind that he could hold her to the finish.

At the thirtieth mile the steamer, which had been piking along in fairly good shape, let loose a sprint, and started by the Jackson. He got by, but that was all, and for the next six or seven miles these two cars fought it out horse, foot and dragon, making a splendid showing, and getting away from the field. Try as it might, the steamer could not shake the speedy Jackson, which clung to her as a dog does to a bone.

Jackson Had Speed.

The Jackson had speed and power in plenty, but alas, the very determination of Burman to defeat the steamer, which was laps behind him, was his very undoing. At the thirty-fifth mile the Jackson commenced to slow down. And it was plainly seen that she was losing distance, and after that she gradually fell behind until the very finish of the race, when she was far in the rear, a position hardly in keeping with the excellency of her showing in the three quarters of the contest.

When it was seen that the Jackson was losing distance and position, the American made a bold effort to take second place. The Oldsmobile, which at that time was a mile ahead, insisted on keeping company with her yellow colored rival, and although the latter once passed her, it was only to come back into second position, the Oldsmobile proving more speedy at every stage of the game, although to be sure the American was by no means a slow one. This contest between the two was grand in the extreme, and right well did the two cars earn their honors. The Royal Tourist was driven the full fifty miles at a steady, even pace, and she captured third position. The Corbin was likewise a car driven on schedule, she going good and steady throughout, and at the finish of the contest was just as cool as any car in the race, proving conclusively that her system of cooling is thoroughly practicable and reliable. The Stanley was rather a surprise, as the majority had anticipated seeing her run away with the contest, and that she did not make better time was rather surprising, considering the fact that she is credited with making miles in practice in 1m. 5s.

The Jackson and the Grout divided position honors, both having more or less tire trouble, and the Knox was handicapped from the very start, owing to battery difficulties. The time of the winner for the fifty miles was 1h. 3m. 24s.

The 100-mile event was replete with interesting periods, although by no means as exciting as the shorter distance event. Morrison, with the Stearns, seemed to have things his own way in that event, when he suddenly cast a shoe and lost first position. Later, upon returning to the track, his radiator sprung open, and although losing water and boiling the same with great rapidity, he pluckily stuck to the track and finished the event. He had some consolation in knowing that although he himself failed to capture the event, another one of his entrants, the Oldsmobile, got the race without once leaving the track or suffering any engine or other trouble whatever. It was a handsome, consistent performance on the part of the Olds, which at the finish of the race was four miles ahead of Murch in the Cadillac, another car which performed with credit to itself and its operator. In fact, these two cars went through the race without a single miss or skip, both having the greatest of luck with tires and ignition troubles.

Clever, Heady Race.

Never once did either of the men overload their engines with work, but instead drove a clever and heady race, with satisfactory results to both cars and themselves. The Frayer-Miller won third honors, and had she been working as well as she is capable of doing she would have made a much closer finish, she being thirteen miles behind the leader. Throughout the race the car seemed to be having more or less ignition trouble, and Lewis certainly handled her in good style.

The Grout was another car to suffer from misfortune, like Morrison, getting tire trouble. She finished fourth, with eighty-two miles to her credit, and the Dragon, another car that had tire troubles in profusion, went eighty miles. The two-cylinder Jackson, driven by E. P. Blake, plugged along at a right good pace and finished seventh, with seventy-five miles to her credit. Morrison got sixth, with seventy-nine miles, and Nielsen, in the Moon, finished in last place, with seventy-three miles score.

These two latter cars certainly had their bunch of trouble, both being deserving of better positions than they scored. Nielsen drove the fastest mile recorded in the full distance. The time for the first car was 2h. 9m. 15s.

The attendance at the track was of the very best, some 7,000 persons being present. The display of motor vehicles was far ahead of that of previous years. The crowd this year seemed to hang to their cars, and left the grandstand for those who motored not to the track.

The board of officers was an exceptionally good one, and the results of the day are particularly gratifying to the B. S. A. A., and especially to the three gentlemen who had the management of the meet, namely, L. R. Speare, F. A. Hinchcliffe and James Fortescue.

SHUMAN GETS SEA SURPRISE

A. Shuman, with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus (Lillian Shuman), are homeward bound on the Arabic, which will arrive to-morrow.

Yesterday was Mr. Shuman's birthday, and he was delightfully surprised in being the recipient of a handsome tribute on the breakfast table, consisting of a florentine basket of fruit garlanded with flowers, and a crimson ribbon inscribed as follows: "Warmest birthday greetings and thrice welcome to the home shore from the Shuman Corner Staff," which, occurring as it did in mid-ocean, was a most unexpected happening, supplemented as it was by numerous wireless messages of congratulation.

DUSE COMING TO AMERICA

ROME, May 31.—Eleanora Duse, the actress, is to sail for the United States on June 2. Members of the company with which the great actress will appear sailed on Thursday from Genoa. Duse will sail from Lisbon on an English ship. It is not known now just how long her American tour will continue.

Simultaneously with the announcement that Duse will visit North America comes a statement that Gabriele d'Annunzio, whose love affair with Duse broke the actress's heart after she had made him famous by producing his plays, is to go to South America for a lecture tour. It is reported he is to receive $40,000 and expenses for a series of twenty lectures.

PILGRIMS RETURN TO HUB TO MEET NEW YORK

Still game but much frayed at the edges the weary Pilgrims return to the old stand at Huntington avenue this afternoon to remain in the home berth long enough to recover from the bumps and jolts received along the Western circuit.

The first visitors will be Clarke Griffith and his Highlanders, a team which is hanging on to the first division in good shape. No team draws better than the Highlanders, as the fans like to get after the hustling manager, who insists on making his presence on the field noticeable when things don't go just right for his team.

And the fans will forget the disastrous Western trip of Unglaub and his balltossers to swarm out on the grounds and pull for some wins over the Gothamites.

George Winter is the likely candidate to douse the glims of the Highlanders, and the youngster is pitching the kind of ball which wins games if his team will do its share of the run getting.

In all the contests this boy pitched on the pilgrimage the scores were small and defeats could not be laid at his door.

Seven wins out of twenty-one games away is the record of the first Western tour, but it's lucky this showing comes at the beginning of the schedule, as there is still time to make headway if there is any fighting spirit in the team. Four games were lost by a margin of one run, and in only three games total scores resulted in double figures, so it is perfectly evident that there was nothing weak in the pitching department, the trouble coming from the inability of the men to hit the ball.

The fans will be able to judge for themselves beginning to-day, as the team will be home till after the Fourth of July.

Uncle Cy Young will come in for a big reception, as he got four out of the seven games won on the trip, and the old railsplitter has proved to be the best among the artists of the curve.

The team got an even break yesterday by taking one of the two games with the Athletics and this little trick will put them in better standing for the big greeting to-day

DORCHESTER WON GAME, 4-3

Dorchester High defeated Somerville High at Somerville yesterday, 4 to 3, through the superb pitching of Frank Riley, who allowed only seven hits and struck out eight batsmen. Harry Munroe, the star Somerville twirler, was not in the best of form, being a trifle wild. Mayor Fitzgerald led the cheering for the Dorchester rooters.

EXETER LOSES ANDOVER MEET

ANDOVER, May 31.—In their annual track and field meet here, the Andover athletes defeated Exeter, 56 5-6 points to 39 1-6, which was by a much larger margin than expected. The shot put was the only Andover-Exeter record broken, E. J. Hart of Exeter winning with a put of 44 ft. 6 in., the previous mark being 40 feet. 11½ in., established by E. J. Marshall of Exeter in 1903.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK TRIALS IN STADIUM TODAY

Who will win the big intercollegiate track championships in the Stadium is the all absorbing question reflected in the minds of the thousands of followers of college sports and the decision will be rendered on Saturday when the big universities of the country will be on hand to compete for individual college honors and get in the race for points to secure a leg on the big cup.

This afternoon the skirmish will begin when the trials in the different events are called, the survivors to qualify for the finals.

All but the mile and two mile runners will try conclusions to-day and considerable ground for deciding the championship will be based on the number of qualifying men each college secures.

Michigan Entered in Meet.

More zest is added to the annual meet this year than ever before because it is the first time that a comparison can be made between Eastern and Western college athletes. Michigan has entered the arena and will be present with a team of ten men, the selfsame which won the championship of the West.

Many believe that the Wolverines from Michigan will win the meet, based on the strength of the men in their events and the knowledge that Keene Fitzpatrick always sends a well-balanced team to championship affairs, but, on the other hand, it does not look reasonable that a small team can come out of the West for the first time and gain leading honors from the elite of the Eastern universities, whose array of athletes is something to marvel at.

Michigan may be a contender, but it is pure optimism to expect more.

The most likely aspirant for first place this year is the University of Pennsylvania, and it is possible that old Mike Murphy may come into his own and be the king of college trainers once more, a place he has been forced to relinquish to John Moakley of Cornell for the past couple of years.

Mr. Murphy has the point winners this year, if they will live up to expectations. Form is about the only way that the result can be judged, and in this respect his team stands out most prominently.

Penn. Strong in Sprints.

Penn's stronghold is in the sprints and a duplication of the sixteen points won last year in the 100 and 220-yard dashes means a wedge in result, which will be hard for the other colleges to break up. With the dashes going to Penn it is a safe bet that the 440-yard dash goes the same way with such a consistent wonder as Taylor running. If Taylor decides to run the half-mile there will be more points for Red and Blue.

Again, in the mile, Haskins, the crack Penn distance runner is assured first place if he runs to form, as he has already beaten the existing intercollegiate record. Haskins also has a fine mark for the half mile and would be a factor, like Taylor, if he runs the event.

Five points in the high jump is also accorded to Penn, with Moffit going over six feet. His only rival will be Marshall of Yale. Then Penn is likely to get points in the pole vault and the hammer throw, so that the outlook is decidedly in favor of the Pennsylvania College if the men run to their best performances. The fact that Mike Murphy has the greatest reputation of turning out sprinters would be a good guarantee that the dashes are considered safe.

Cornell May Be Dark Horse.

Cornell cannot be counted out of the running by any means, and the surprises that Trainer Moakley sprung the last two years is still fresh in the memory of those who saw the games. He is likely to have something up his sleeve for the occasion, yet he is quoted as saying that less than thirty points would win the meet, when the Cornell team got away with thirty-eight in 1906. The fact that he thinks his team will score at least twenty-seven would tend to show that from his standpoint the battle would be waged fiercer than ever and the winning team will not have any too much margin at the end.

From every angle the competition appears to be the hardest to judge and promises the closest fight that has been on for years.

Michigan will be the biggest thorn in the side of Cornell if her distance runners are as formidable as their records would credit, as the Ithacan's mainstay is on the track in the middle and long distance runs, and through those mediums were able to win the championship two years straight.

SCHRECK WINS A FAST BOUT WITH MARVIN HART

TONOPAH, Nev., May 31.—Ten thousand spectators, among them a large number of women, saw Mike Schreck of Cincinnati smash down Marvin Hart's guard early in the battle last night and batter him to defeat in twenty rounds of gruelling fighting. Fierce rushes and tremendous body punches marked the contest from the start.

With their man staggering under the terrific drubbing he was receiving, and his right hand broken, the seconds of the erstwhile heavyweight champion of the world threw up the sponge in the twenty-first round as a signal that they had had enough.

The ending of the fight was not as satisfactory as might be supposed, judging from the howl that went up from the ringside, but at that it was a good fight. To those who have seen Hart in action before it was manifest that the Kentuckian has not improved. Hart showed about as much grace as a hippopotamus that has passed the century mark, but he won the crowd by his magnificent courage.

Hart's Courage Supreme.

Time and time again the big lad from the Blue Grass State went down under the fierce rushes and the battering-ram punches of Schreck, but he vindicated the reputation of his native State by coming back for more, and never showing signs of the white feather. Hart displayed at times spurts of what might be termed near-science, but these spurts were very few. During most of the fighting Schreck hammered the Kentuckian at will, and it was seldom that Marvin came back hard enough to do damage.

Schreck proved early in the fight that he was the more clever. It was apparent that Hart wanted to end the fight quickly, and he waded in from the sound of the gong. There was no sparring for advantages, but Hart rushed and made terrific swings with right and left in an effort to land the haymaker.

Schreck Fights Like Tiger.

Hart's tactics took Mike off his feet but he soon recovered and succeeded throughout the fight in ducking Hart's swings. In the twentieth period the Dutchman went in to finish things. Hart was on the ropes most of the time in this round and though he came back gamely he was all in when the gong sounded. At the opening of the twenty-first Schreck flew at Hart like a tiger and Hart was unable to raise his hands in defence. Suddenly a towel was flung from Hart's corner into the ring and George Siler pointed to Schreck as the winner.

After the fight the management announced that Hart had broken his right hand in the sixteenth round. The fight was a good one to watch and the spectators were given a run for their money.

Barney Reynolds, manager of Bill Squires, was at the ringside. He was not too outspoken in his opinions, but intimated that he did not fear Schreck in a match with Squires.

The fight was notable from the standpoint of the number of women who came to see it. A good crowd was on hand to witness the mill, and it is estimated that in the neighborhood of $15,000 passed by the box office.

After the fight Hart's hand was examined by a local physician, who said that two of the small bones at the back of the right hand had been fractured. Hart declares he wants a return match.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—After having had a long session on their home grounds in Boston, the Doves came here to-day for the opening game of a series of three, after which they will leave for the West for an arduous trip.

Manager Tenney is confident that his team will win two out of three in this city, which will be going some, as the Quakers are putting up a good game now, as they manifested against the Giants.

Pfeffer will probably do the twirling for the Bostons this afternoon, while Sparks will probably pitch for the home team.

"STAHL DAY" ON JUNE 13

All arrangements have been completed for a hugh benefit to the widow of Chick Stahl at the Boston American grounds on June 13, when the Pilgrims will play the Providence nine of the Eastern League, and the entire proceeds will be donated for the purpose named.

Owner John Taylor of the Americans has had the plan in mind for some time, and June 13 being the first open date at home he conferred with owners Fred Doe and Hugh Duffy of Providence, who immediately fell in with the scheme.

Furthermore, Messrs. Doe and Duffy declare that they will pay all expenses of bringing their team here from Toronto, so that Mrs. Stahl will receive every cent taken at the gate.

"Stahl Day" is certain to be a red letter occasion for the fans, it giving them the opportunity of paying their respects to the memory of the popular ex-manager of the Americans whose sad death is fresh in the minds of all.

CANADA AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES DOUBLE REGULAR RATES.

The Slaughter Begins

If trade secrets can be believed, Boston will this summer see the biggest slaughtering of merchandise values ever known in its history. Merchants, big and little, financially good, bad and indifferent, are loaded to the doors with spring and summer merchandise—merchandise that will have to be paid for this season, merchandise that next season will be passe, merchandise that will never in the world sell for what it cost to put it on their counters.

Hoping against hope, for three long, dreary months they have silently carried their burdens, waiting for the Spring trade that never came—that never will come. The season has gone.

The slaughter has begun. Already they are getting under cover. Forced by trade conditions and the severe stock market slump, one of Boston's fancy tailors this week closed out to me at Private Sale his entire stock of exclusive woolens. I offer them at bargain prices.

MRS. GOULD IS ANGERED AT JEROME

Disgusted at District Attorney's Failure to Act, Arranges to Give Him Facts.

DECIDE MAIL CASE TO-DAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Friends of Mrs. Howard Gould declared yesterday that she was disgusted because District Attorney Jerome had not started a Grand Jury investigation to ascertain whether the law was broken by any person paying members of the City Detective Bureau to spy on her. It was said she had instructed her counsel Clarence J. Shearn, to lay before the district attorney to-day a great many facts in the Gould divorce case which are considered a sufficient base for him to act upon.

Chief among these is the opening of Mrs. Gould's mail. United States District Attorney Stimson is to-day expected to decide as to whether the mail case lies within his jurisdiction. If it does not the matter is up to District Attorney Jerome. The only doubt has been as to whether State or Federal laws have been violated.

Friends of Mrs. Gould commented on anonymous statements to the effect that Mr. Gould would charge habitual inebriety on her part as his principal reason for deserting Mrs. Gould. These statements did not bear the official backing of either De Lancey Nicoll or Mr. Gould, although inquiry revealed that they emanated from the office of Mr. Nicoll and were credited to "a friend of Mr. Gould's."

In Mrs. Gould's behalf it was pointed out that the evident purpose was to credit Mr. Gould with a delicacy which made him forego any attack on his wife, yet the "friend" said Mr. Gould's reply in the suit would contain a full story of how he tried to keep his wife from drinking. It was pointed out further that "Big Bill" Hawley, on whom Mr. Gould seemed to have depended for evidence, had declared he had been unable to find a single fact against Mrs. Gould. Her friends considered this ample reason for not bringing a counter suit.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

WHERE BRAINY ECONOMICAL PEOPLE BUY ANY MAKE PIANO—RIGHT

A great many people are ignorant of the fact that the best possible opportunity to buy a piano at the lowest possible price is to get one at the Storage Salesrooms. Sometimes the finest pianos that are made go almost for a song. Some pianos of the best makes that have been used only slightly, and at that in the best homes, are sold for prices that seem impossibly low. New and second hand pianos are sold regardless of price.

Pianos go for prices much lower than an auction would bring. There is no one to bid at a piano storage salesrooms, the price is simply put on, first come, first served, and the careful, economical man or woman who wants to buy a piano economically, in fact more than economically, will watch the storage sales carefully.

The gilded piano stores with their costly appointments, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Bargains Beginning Monday, May 27

We would advise you to make up your mind to buy your Piano this coming week as soon as circumstances will allow you. There were not enough Pianos in the lot to last through Saturday, May 25, and we do not take any from the accounts for sale until Mondays—People who get in and buy Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays get tremendous bargains—Every Piano is tuned by our expert and is at concert pitch before coming into our salesroom—We let no Piano go out before being assured of its excellent condition.

Mexico's Righteous Stand for Sovereignty

A controversy is pending between the Republic of Mexico and the Government of Guatemala which may of right claim the interest of civilized men everywhere. It involves the fundamental right of a country to punish crime committed within its borders.

General Barillas, a former President of Guatemala, was assassinated in the City of Mexico. The evidence clearly proved that the murder was instigated by General Jose Maria Lima, the confidential officer of President Cabrera of Guatemala, who sent a man to Mexico to commit the deed.

Acting in accordance with international law and usage, President Diaz of Mexico made a demand on the President of Guatemala for the surrender of Lima to be tried for the crime in the country where it was committed. This demand was refused on the ground that, under the treaty between the two countries, Guatemala was not compelled to surrender the criminal. No denial was made of Lima's guilt, which seems to be admitted.

The position taken by President Cabrera puts Mexico in a quandry. At first it was assumed that diplomatic relations between the two countries would be ruptured and Mexico began to mass troops on the frontier as a matter of precaution, because of signs of revolution in Guatemala.

Relations between the nations have become strained in consequence of the unjust and untenable position taken by President Cabrera, and it is declared to be the purpose of President Diaz to publish the proceedings to the world and leave the matter to the judgment of mankind.

Mexico is a great country which is making rapid strides in progress under the beneficent rule of Diaz. Guatemala is a country of little resources with a population of less than two millions of people, mostly Indians and halfbreeds. Diaz is unwilling to engage in war with so feeble an antagonist, as he and his country have no lust for conquest or desire to annex territory. Yet, unless Guatemala recedes from her position and gives up the wretched Lima to justice it will be impossible for Mexico to assert her sovereignty except she goes to war. And war would probably result in the annexation of Guatemala to Mexico.

According to the Mexico Herald this is what Mexico does not wish to do and it adds that it is doubtful whether Guatemala would be admitted to the Mexico sisterhood of states upon petition. This is, doubtless, true.

Nevertheless, looking at the situation from the point of view of an outside spectator, it would seem that the best thing for Mexico—and, what is more, the best thing for the world—would be for Mexico to annex Guatemala as promptly and as peacefully as an army can do it.

Mexico is governed by the greatest ruler in the world to-day. He is not as spectacular as some others. He is not another "Teddy." He is not forever whimsically whirling in the glare of publicity like a gnat gyrating around a candle, yet when his country really needed sensational achievements Diaz performed them in a most powerful and effective way.

His early life was an heroic dream, but he has devoted his late years to the calm and peaceful development of his great and rich country, and, under his wise rule, Mexico has become one of the foremost nations of the earth.

It would be an immense benefit for the citizens of Guatemala to have substituted for the ridiculous rule of their present President the statesmanship of Diaz, and, while Mexico might not immediately benefit by the annexation of an undeveloped state, she would benefit in time, when Guatemala, under the just and able government of Diaz, had become a flourishing part of the Mexican union.

As citizens of the world interested in the general development of mankind, we would be glad to see a little comic opera community cease to exist as an independent nonentity and become a part of a great, dignified and prosperous nation.

All those who wish Mexico well and Guatemala well will be happy to see both develop together under this beneficent rule of Porfirio Diaz.

Little Editorials from the People

DISARMAMENT, THE FUTURE PROPOSITION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

To the man on the street no time seems more opportune than the present for the formal discussion of disarmament, or, in other words, the relief of all nations from the serious burden of colossal navies.

The great drain upon the people of England at the present day is being greatly felt. Lord Salisbury declares that taxation in England, to keep up their enormous navy, if continued much longer, will bring about a great catastrophe. According to the latest reports given out from Tokio, we learn that Japan feels keenly the immense drain upon its finances, and the government is seriously contemplating curtailing expenses during the coming year. Both England and Japan have become fully aware of the inadvisability of increasing their navies. The increase, they say, threatens their civilization.

Armament must be limited in the future. Every country of Europe feels this except Germany. England demands it, and when Germany finds there is no great need of armament she, too, will fall in line with the other nations. The great trend of civilization is to secure peace. England sees the folly in great navies. We have outgrown the age of fighting. We are educated above fighting to settle disputes.

There is no great fear that our commerce will not be sufficiently protected if disarmament is decided upon. Our greatest defence lies in our great commercial relations with Europe. "Uncle Sam" feeds the world. By refusing to [illegible] our products we could have Europe begging for mercy.

In the future armament is going to be regulated. Intelligent men feel that it must be regulated. Great Britain, Japan, the United States and France are willing. Russia will yield to a majority. The only country against disarmament is Germany. England stands firm for disarmament as conditions demand.

Disarmament, when decided upon, will be the sane decision, as war is a most unprofitable business, and there is no need of burdening peace with expenditures for great armies and navies.

Oak Bluffs. GEORGE C. EVANS.

IN A GOOD CAUSE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The article in your edition of May 23d has been a source of gratification to many of the Hebrews in our city, as the case of Mrs. Bertha Rayner Frank of Baltimore is similar to those occurring daily right here in New England. Hebrews of standing have been refused accommodations by almost every first class hotel along the North Shore. I am not bringing this matter to you from hearsay, but I have experienced the same refusal by no less than three proprietors of nearby hotels who "cannot cater to Hebrew patronage" because they would lose their Gentile guests. Can nothing be done to remedy this matter? Such heroic, intelligently written articles as your paper published, if more frequently repeated, might help our cause.

Boston. "GRATEFUL."

PLENTY OF MONEY, BUT NOT A CENT FOR TEACHERS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The school teachers of Somerville are denied a living wage, yet Wednesday night the Board of Aldermen voted enthusiastically an appropriation of $20,000 of the taxpayers' money out of the city treasury to [illegible] a soldiers' monument on Central Hill. The deeds of the men of Somerville who fought in the Civil War should be venerated, but our first duty is to the living. When the teachers asked the city fathers for more money, the answer was: "We haven't money enough." That $20,000 should have been given to the men and women who are educating the boys and girls of Somerville, making them good future citizens. The teachers are not asking for praise or reward. They want simply what it is their right to receive—a decent, living wage.

The New Reform

By James J. Montague

Inebriates and other of the erring are being cured on the Bowery by hypnotic suggestion.—News Item.

If you have any busily bibulous
friends who dally too long with the dram
And worry their wives,
By living their lives
In the fashion of Omar Khayyam,
Don't feed them bichloride and strychnine and things which perhaps may impair their digestion,
But flip them the think
That drink's on the blink
By means of hypnotic suggestion.
And when they have read in your withering glare the loathing you have for the flagon,
Their blood will congeal, with the terror they feel, and—maybe—they'll go to the wagon.

If along about two or two-thirty a. m.
a burglar appears at your door
And pleads for your gold
While he lets you behold
The eye of a new .44,
Don't grab for his gun or bawl hoarsely, "Police!" Both courses would be rather rude.
Just flip him the thought
That he ought to be brought
To a sense of his base turpitude.
If the pitiless crook can but read in your look the things there is no need to say,
He'll feel before long that perhaps he is wrong, and—maybe—he'll go right away.

She Points Out to Teachers and Parents the Importance of Training Children's Voices

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

NOT long ago it was my privilege to listen to the private reading of a very interesting lecture prepared by that brilliant young American author, Mr. John Barry.

The lecture was on the importance of correct, clean and clear speaking. Not in public addresses, but in daily conversation.

I hope the lecture will be given to thousands of young men and women who have graduated from colleges, for there is no class needing it more.

Whatever our public schools, our high schools and our colleges may teach, they certainly do not send forth graduates whose voices or pronunciation or enunciation attract listeners.

The American Accent

ALL over foreign countries "the American voice" is referred to as the synonym of a siren whistle or a foghorn.

Everywhere the "American accent" is criticised.

While many of these criticisms are unjust, and the result of prejudice and jealousy, yet they have sprung from a deep-rooted cause.

American men possess more agreeable voices than American women. But they do not, as a class, regard careful diction and correct pronunciation as a matter of serious import in life, as do foreign men of equal education.

While the conversation of our delightful American men is more agreeable to me, with all their faults, than that of the most accomplished foreigner, yet I wish that voice placing, pronunciation and expression were made subjects of greater importance in our land.

Slovenly language, ungrammatical phrases, disagreeable, harsh, loud voices detract from and mar the personality and limit the usefulness of the most accomplished and worthy man and woman.

An agreeable voice and correct enunciation leave a trail like a subtle fragrance where the speaker passes. Were I a man it seems to me one of the first requisites in a wife would be a well-placed voice and correct speech.

If you are a parent give your children's voice attention. Have them learn to moderate their tones before they learn the multiplication table.

If you are a teacher, in no matter what line, talk to your pupils about their voices and their language.

If you are a grown man or woman, begin now to improve your voice and your expression.

A few lessons from some good teacher who makes a specialty of voice placing, and a little thought and effort, will help you to make surprising improvement in a short time.

Then obtain books of good English and read aloud each day half an hour and pronounce slowly and distinctly as you read.

In conversation remember to lower the voice; avoid slang and coarse expressions. No matter how slow may be the progress, it will be made, if the resolve is earnest and the effort persistent.

Home Training

A LETTER came to me some months ago from a woman who was placed in an orphan asylum as an infant, given out to a "good home" at the age of eight, and until she was eighteen years old allowed no opportunities of learning how to read or write.

Yet this woman wrote an excellent letter, free from grammatical errors or mistakes in spelling and couched in concise language. She made an appeal to all institutions for orphans that they hold themselves responsible for the training and education of the children they place in the so-called "good homes."

No home is good, the writer justly maintained, which does not afford an orphan child the opportunity for a common education.

But even with all advantages of education bestowed upon thousands of American young men and women, they give the impression of lack of culture, because of high-pitched voices and slovenly language.

No "education," no wealth, no beauty, no personal adornment, no moral virtues can make a cultured man or woman if the voice is disagreeable, the language slovenly.

Cultivate your voice and improve your speech.

Party Enrolment

(FROM THE BOSTON POST)

WHEN the Board of Aldermen meets again it is to be hoped that the Committee on Public Improvements will have ready a favorable report upon the order requesting the Mayor to direct the Board of Election Commissioners to open their office for a limited number of evening sessions to enable voters who wish to change their party enrolment to do so without loss of a part of their working day.

This order was introduced at the last session and was put over by reference. It looks to nothing more than simple justice in making it convenient for men who have to work all day to place themselves party-wise as they wish to be placed for voting in the primaries.
